

MARSHALL TAKES NEW JOB MONDAY

PORTAL SUITS
TOO HIGH, CIO
COUNSEL SAYSLEGISLATION URGED TO PERMIT UNION
COMPROMISES

BY JOHN B. OWEN
Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, testified today that portal pay suits totalling more than $4,000,000 filed mostly by CIO unions are "highly exaggerated" and urged legislation to permit compromising them.

But Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), author of a bill to outlaw the suits, demurred that authorization for compromises would "deal entirely into your hands."

Pressman told a Senate judiciary subcommittee considering portal pay measures by Capehart and others that it would be preferable to work the matter out "through collective bargaining on the back claims than to enact a law outlawing them at one fell swoop because it would be unconstitutional as depriving the employees of property without due process of law."

"Horrible Mess" Foreseen
Pressman predicted such a law would be knocked out as unconstitutional after perhaps a two-year court battle and "all we would have then is a more horrible mess than we have today."

It would mean, he declared, two more years of "accrued liability" against employers.

"In spite of the claims now pending, which I feel are highly exaggerated," Pressman said, "I do not know of a single situation where a single corporation has urged that its credit position has been affected by these lawsuits."

Pressman also testified that "there have been highly exaggerated claims on both sides," referring to industry testimony in behalf of the legislation. He said that "an attempt has been made to convey to this committee the notion that the very pillars of the republic would collapse if the courts were permitted to pass upon the claims of the workers."

Won't Give Names
The suits followed a supreme court ruling declaring work for pay under the wage-hour act includes time controlled by the employer regardless of whether actual physical labor is involved. Pressman explained all the suits deal with claims for overtime resulting from extra activity.

He was the first of a series of CIO witnesses opposing the legislation which spokesmen for industry have supported as necessary to prevent "economic disaster."

Questioning came under sharp questioning when he refused to divulge names demanded by the committee.

He reported that industry spokesmen had refused CIO request for collective bargaining on a portal-to-portal basis because they felt sure, after talking to congressmen, that the law would be amended.

Pressman refused to name the CIO or industry representatives involved, contending the matter is confidential under collective bargaining procedure.

Lieutenant Governor
Takes Oath, Battles
Talmadge In Georgia

(By The Associated Press)

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 18—Lieut. Gov. M. E. Thompson announced today he had taken over as acting governor of Georgia, following resignation of Ellis Arnall, and would demand that Herman Talmadge surrender the governor's office and executive mansion.

Talmadge, elected by the legislature in the early hours of Wednesday morning after a tumultuous 16-hour session, took physical possession of the capitol and mansion Thursday after ousting Arnall. The retiring governor, who rejected Talmadge as "that pretender" and accused him of seizing the government with "storm troops, thugs and ruffians," later set up temporary executive offices in a downtown office building.

Thompson, former educator and doctor of philosophy, took his oath of office at 10:50 a. m. in the almost deserted Senate chamber. Immediately afterward, Arnall announced that his conditional resignation, filed previously with the secretary of state, had become effective.

Thompson said he would confront Talmadge Monday in the executive office and demand that he surrender the governorship. "If I do not see him then," continued Thompson (Monday is Robert E. Lee's birthday and a legal holiday in Georgia) "I will see him Tuesday, and if not then, then at the earliest possible opportunity."

Asked at a press conference if he could evict the rival governor, Thompson replied: "Just yet I don't have a strong military at my back, but I shall follow up my demand."

Thompson said until he was granted access to the executive offices, he would occupy offices of the Senate president, just off the Senate chamber. There was no indication if Talmadge would attempt to eject Thompson.

Thompson said his first official act was to direct the attorney general to continue suit to eject Talmadge from exercising authority of governor. The suit, filed originally in the name of Arnall, as governor.

MINISTER BACK
WITH HIS WIFEChoir Singer And Pastor
Return To Families
After Escapade

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 18 (AP)—A graying Methodist minister and a pretty, 40-year-old choir singer in his church returned today to the bosoms of their families today, their romantic, cross-country escapade apparently near a happy ending.

The Rev. Daniel L. Reedy, 54-year-old grandfather, and Mrs. Mary Marguerite Cowles, brown-haired mother of a grown son, arrested Friday after a 10-day motor trip to Texas and back, face court examination Feb. 7 on adultery charges.

They were freed on bonds of $1,000 each posted by their respective mates.

However, Kent county Prosecutor Menso R. Bolt told the woman's husband, Paul, 40, a salesman, that Michigan law permits him to withdraw the charges at any time prior to the examination.

The prosecutor said Cowles indicated he would "think it over."

The husband, who made the adultery complaint Jan. 14, told newsmen:

"I will take her back. I have forgiven her. I don't blame her; I blame her nervous condition and I believe it was mostly the minister's fault."

Mrs. Cowles had been under treatment for a nervous condition for about a year, her husband said. However, the prosecutor announced that a psychiatrist, Dr. E. H. Fuller, examined her and found her "sane."

The Rev. E. H. Babbitt, Methodist district superintendent, said the Rev. Reedy has expressed a desire to "go away and start over again" in the ministry, despite his resignation Jan. 8.

LOST RADIUM FOUND

Pittsburgh, Jan. 18 (AP)—A 50 milligram capsule of radium was tossed into the incinerator of Shadyside hospital today by mistake.

Dr. Surain S. Sidhu, associated professor of physics at the University of Pittsburgh found the lost radium with a Geiger counter. The capsule, lost for four hours, is worth $1,200.

PRESIDENT GETS
BACKING OF GOPTruman And Congress
Getting Along Fine
So Far

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—A couple of top-flight Democrats, pointing to the record for the first two weeks, concluded today that cooperation between the President and Congress is a fact, so far.

They even made some cracks about "rubber stamp" Republicans—but not seriously.

These leaders, who did not want their names used in their interview, noted two things:

1. The first bill approved by any committee of the 80th Congress would continue present taxes on such things as furs, jewelry and perfume. And who asked for that? President Truman.

2. Republicans were as loud as Democrats in lauding the Army and Navy agreement for unification and in predicting quick Congressional consideration. Mr. Truman has been plugging for that, too.

The Democrats even conceded that the plan might get better treatment at the hands of the GOP than when their own party was running things on Capitol Hill.

Republican managers hope to shove that tax bill through the House with little trouble next week. At one point they were talking of repealing immediately the rates they now proposed to continue.

"Maybe it's a little premature," one Democratic chief chuckled, "to say this is a rubber stamp Congress."

One of the top House Republicans had some points of his own: 1. The Republicans have said right along they would cooperate in legislation for the good of the country.

2. The GOP is using its own judgment on whether cooperation is warranted—as evidenced by plans to whack away at the president's budget of spending for the coming fiscal year.

Inventory Control
To Lapse March 31,
Washington Expects

BY STERLING F. GREEN
Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Officials expect President Truman to permit inventory control to lapse March 31, surrendering the government's chief weapon against hoarding of scarce goods and materials.

The officials, who are familiar with decontrol plans, reported today that a majority of White House advisers believe this curb on the accumulation of business stocks can be omitted from Mr. Truman's forthcoming recommendations on extension of the second war powers act.

The president's proposals are to go to Congress within a fortnight in the hope that Congress will act on industrial control policies before the act's March 31 expiration date.

He is expected to seek continued regulation over rubber and tin, scarce foodstuffs, certain building materials, and possibly antimony, cinchona bark for medical use, and some other materials.

HOUSE GROUP
PREPARES TO
TRIM BUDGETARMY-NAVY MERGER ECONOMIES TO BE CHECKED

BY FRANCIS M. LEMAY

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Republicans bent on whittling down President Truman's $37,500,000,000 budget disclosed today they will call upon the Army and Navy for a showing of money savings in the plan for unification of the armed forces.

Brushing aside arguments by some Republicans and Democrats that the $11,587,000,000 outlay for national defense in fiscal 1948 should not be touched, Chairman Taber (R-N. Y.) of the House appropriations committee declared to reporters:

"There is going to be a thorough overhauling of Army and Navy spending estimates. We are going to ask what for and why on each item. They are going to show us where we can save. If they don't we will show them."

Army and Navy officers who discussed the unification plan with reporters at the White House yesterday said there had been no estimates on possible savings. Nor did President Truman's budget estimate take into account such a result.

Tax Slash Uncertain

Mr. Truman wrote House and Senate leaders today that he will submit the unification legislation soon; it will be drafted by representatives of the White House and the War and Navy Departments.

Other fast moving developments on the money-taxes front included:

1. The joint House-Senate budget committee of 102 members, created under the Congressional reorganization act, was called to its first session on Monday. It is ready to begin studies of the president's budget estimates with a view to Congress putting its own ceiling on government spending.

2. Mr. Truman moved to recapture some $569,000,000 of unspent appropriations and remove from the books some $800,000,000 in old lend-lease funds. He got a quick nod of assent from Congress.

3. Republicans plan to press through the House on Monday legislation, asked by the president, to freeze the excise taxes indefinitely at their high wartime rates—on liquor, furs, jewelry and many other goods and services. Extension action would prevent an automatic rollback of the levies on July 1 and avoid a $1,200,000,000 annual loss of revenue.

4. Prospects for a 20 per cent slash in individual income taxes this year faded. There still appeared to be enough votes to pass a bill granting some tax relief with the principal easement on lower incomes.

YANGTZE CRASH
FATAL TO 400Survivors Threaten To Wreck Ship Office
After Collision

Shanghai, Jan. 18 (AP)—Possibly 400 Chinese drowned today when a small Yangtze river steamer collided with a lighter and sank off Woosung.

Six hundred or more survivors, brought to Shanghai and joined by relatives of victims, angrily besieged the Chinese ship operators' office and threatened to tear it apart before hastily-summoned police quieted them.

The steamer was the Chekiang, bound up river to Nantung with about 1,000 passengers.

Off Woosung, where the Whangpoo from Shanghai joins the Yangtze estuary, the ship collided with one of two steel lighters being towed by a tug and went down almost immediately.

Survivors charged that the Chekiang was badly overloaded and that the tug ignored signals to alter course.

A police launch from Woosung made many trips, rescuing large numbers of persons in the water. In the confusion, estimates of the dead ranged from 400 to 100.

(Passenger lists ordinarily are not kept for such short river trips, so that exact casualties may never be known.)

In violent mood, the drenched survivors marched on the Tung Chi Steamship company offices, demanding redress for lost belongings. Relatives of the missing and presumably dead passengers joined them, shouting for compensation. Police put down the incipient riot.

Arrest Of 21 Nips
$500,000 Hijacking
Ring In New York

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—A gang of hijackers which applied "big business" methods in stealing 30 truckloads of scarce goods worth $500,000 in the past year was smashed today with the arrest of 21 persons in New York and Miami Beach, the FBI announced.

Five men described as the leaders of the group were held in $50,000 bail each when arraigned before Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox of indictments charging theft of shipments in interstate commerce. Thefts included loads of electrical appliances, cotton piece goods, leather, rugs, musical instruments and cosmetics.

Five others named in the indictments were held in smaller bail while four not named in the indictments were arraigned before a U. S. commissioner. Six of the men arrested were held in small bail by a U. S. commissioner in Brooklyn and the last was held in $100,000 bail by a U. S. Commissioner in Miami.

Edward Scheidt, special FBI agent in charge of the New York office, said the arrests came after months of investigation which disclosed the intricate story of the gang's operations, centered in the metropolitan New York area.

He added that "more arrests are expected" although today's roundup "struck a blow at the heart of hijackers and motor truck thieves who have victimized New York business concerns of huge quantities of scarce and expensive merchandise."

Named as director of the gang's depredations was Salvatore Imperiale, alias Salvatore Westo, 34, of Brooklyn, who was credited by Scheidt "with the finesse of a business executive."

Imperiale who took no part in the actual hijackings, was driven around the metropolitan area by one of his subordinates and when a likely shipment was spotted, would assign one of his "specialists" to the job of stealing the truck.

"Specialists" included men who were expert at starting a truck motor without a key by crossing ignition wires and others who could enter a warehouse or garage through a skylight without breaking the glass.

These men in turn were succeeded by skilled drivers who took the truck to two drops in Brooklyn where the merchandise was unloaded. The trucks then were driven away and abandoned.

One Dead, 8 Injured
In East Kentucky
Coal Mine Mishaps

Pikeville, Ky., Jan. 18 (AP)—One man was killed and eight others injured, two seriously, in accidents at three eastern Kentucky coal mines today.

Ted Belcher, 45, of nearby Praise, died in Methodist hospital of back injuries received in a slate fall at the Praise operation of the Marino Coal Co.

The eight were hospitalized following separate early morning explosions occurring four hours apart in the Pike-Elkhorn Coal Co. mine at Trum in nearby Floyd county and at the Williams-Belcher mine three miles north of here.

State Mines Inspector Harry Thomas said the accident at Trum was "due directly to the carelessness of two men handling explosives." He said a can of blasting powder was touched off by sparks from crossed electrical cables inside the mine and that "accumulated dust in the mine added to the initial blast."

The Marines said that the Chinese gave them a rousing sendoff and presented Lt. Col. N. E. Sparling with a memorial plaque, in friendly contrast with anti-American demonstrations among Chinese students recently.

Cherbourg Landing
Toughest Decision,
Eisenhower Admits

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP)—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's "most difficult" decision in World War 2 was ordering two divisions of air-borne troops to land at Cherbourg in the face of advice their casualties would range from 75 to 90 percent, the Chicago Daily News said in a copyright story today.

The newspaper said General Eisenhower made the disclosure in answer to a direct question when interviewed today by 165 high school editors and reporters known as the Keen Teen group, sponsored by the Daily News. The newspaper said General Eisenhower gave this version of his problem:

Before the invasion of France it had been decided that a landing at Cherbourg was necessary because a port was essential for supplying troops. The landing troops, however, faced the prospect of being slaughtered unless the invaders could first gain control of causeways leading from the strip of sand called Utah Beach to the mainland. Air-borne troops were decided upon as the only solution.

The story added:

"Six days before the scheduled landing an adviser and personal friend of the general pleaded with him not to send paratroopers and glider units on the mission.

Casualties to glider troops would be 90 percent before they ever reached the ground," he told the general. "The killed and wounded among the paratroopers would be 75 percent."

"Four days before the invasion the general still was undecided. The fate of the war then seemed to hinge on control of the causeways between the beach and the mainland.

"The general decided that the risk must be taken. Failure, he knew, would result not only in great loss of life. It also would mean his own loss of position and reputation.

"The end of the story was recorded long ago at Cherbourg. The air-borne troops were landed with only 8 percent casualties."

Poland Fears
TROUBLE TODAY

Underground Mobilizes;
Backs Peasant Party
In Elections

BY LARRY ALLEN
Warsaw, Jan. 18 (AP)—A high government official charged tonight that the entire underground was mobilizing to support the opposition Polish Peasant party in tomorrow's parliamentary elections, the first since 1935, and ordered a half million security police and militiamen to guard the polls.

The semi-official newspaper Rzeczpospolita said that underground bands were posting notices promising to emerge in force from their secret forest hiding places when the vote counting begins Monday.

The posters urged Peasant party (PSL) members to "do the best they can" on election day.

Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Peasant leader, handed the ambassadors of the United States, Britain and Russia a new memorandum citing alleged terrorism by the secret police and mass arrests directed against his party members.

He said the Yalta and Potsdam agreements guaranteeing democratic elections had been flagrantly violated and that "this cannot be a free and unfettered election."

The government insisted that every precaution had been taken to safeguard peaceful and fair balloting for 12,000,000 citizens eligible to appear at the polls between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. It has taken that attitude toward repeated protests by the United States and Britain against alleged anti-democratic election methods. The Russians have supported the government's view that the elections are strictly Poland's own business.

Decision Due Soon
On Draft Extension

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson said today the Army will give Congress its recommendation early next month on the question of extending the draft.

Although there have been strong indications that no effort will be made to continue the draft beyond its present expiration date on March 31, a final decision will be made at the Pentagon and sent to Congress.

President Truman's budget message noted that he was transmitting to estimate for Selective Service because of the impending expiration deadline.

ARMY LEADER TO BE SWORN INTO CABINETRETIRE SECRETARY
BYRNES MAY STAY
IN WASHINGTON

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, Jan. 18 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall will be sworn in as secretary of state at the White House at 11 a. m. (EST) Monday and probably begin at once conferences with President Truman and retiring Secretary Byrnes on outstanding foreign policy issues.

A check with officials today shows he faces three main problems:

(1) Fully acquainting himself with American policy on many issues but especially on the German peace settlement to come up at the Moscow conference March 10;

(2) Deciding on top aides and officials to work with him in the state department;

(3) Working with President Truman on various shifts in important diplomatic assignments abroad.

No Permanent Farewell
The privately expressed conviction of his close associates is that Byrnes is saying farewell to the state department but not permanently to Washington. There is speculation that he may someday return either to the supreme court or to the Senate or accept from President Truman a less strenuous job. His friends say they know he will not retire to a life of inactivity.

Byrnes will attend the ceremony at which Chief Justice Vinson will administer the oath to Marshall. He will leave here with his close friend and former law partner, retiring Assistant Secretary of State Ronald Russell, for his Spartanburg, S. C., home by train late Monday night.

Marshall is expected here by plane from Honolulu tomorrow. He had been resting in Hawaii from the strain of his 13 months as Mr. Truman's trouble-shooter in China.

The general, according to reports here, used his ten-day stay (Continued on Page Two) in Honolulu to study many questions of American foreign policy with which he was unfamiliar. Reports for his background are understood to have been sent from Washington.

Close Friends Quit

He is also believed to have given some thought to personnel problems. Russell already has resigned and another close friend of Byrnes, Councillor Benjamin Cohen, is expected to ask his release. All other top state department officials have submitted their resignations to the president as a matter of form, giving Marshall free range in choosing to retain or replace them.

Speculation about other department changes concerns chiefly Assistant Secretary Spruille Braden, whose handling of Argentine relations has been criticized by the U. S. ambassador's own staff. Also may be reviewed by Marshall.

Another opening is due later this year at Manila. Ambassador Paul McNutt having long since expressed his desire to leave. Officials regard it as unlikely that Ambassador John Leighton Stuart will remain American envoy to China indefinitely in view of Marshall's departure but no decision on this is expected until Marshall and the president review the China situation.

One of the assignments, possibly that in the Philippines, may go to Admiral William D. Leahy, the president's chief of staff. Leahy is understood to have expressed an interest in returning to diplomatic work—he was ambassador to Vichy France and earlier was governor of Puerto Rico.

Prominent Lansing Attorney Stricken

Lansing, Jan. 18 (AP)—A brief illness ended in death today for 73-year-old Charles W. Foster, former state senator and prominent Lansing attorney. Columbus, O., Jan. 18 (AP)—Ohio State beat Northwestern tonight 60 to 49. The defeat ended a three-game losing string for Ohio State's basketball team and kept Northwestern in the cellar position of the Western Conference. Ohio State's triumph was the second in five conference starts for last year's loop champions and marked Northwestern's fourth straight Big Nine setback. After the first five minutes of play, which ended with the score tied at 8-8, Ohio State began pulling away from the visitors and held a halftime edge of 30 to 18.

Mother Of Four, 28, Strangled In Car; Husband Detained

Vinewood, N. J., Jan. 18 (AP)—An attractive 28-year-old mother of four children was strangled today in an automobile on lonely King Nummy trail near here, and her husband was held for questioning after he drove with the body to an undertaking establishment, State Police Corporal John Killeen reported.

Killeen said Kenneth Matlack, Cape May Courthouse undertaker, told police that Ernest H. Corson, Jr., 29, of 13 West Bate avenue, Wildwood Villas, had driven to his funeral home with Mrs. Eleanor Alice Corson, his wife, slumped on the front seat, had knocked on the door and said "I've got a job for you."

The undertaker summoned Dr. Miller Cryder, who pronounced Mrs. Corson dead when resuscitation efforts failed.

Questioning of Corson, Cpl. Killeen said, revealed that the couple had been having marital difficulties, and went for a drive to discuss their problems.

Their children are Joseph, 7; John, 6; Donald 5, and Ernest, 3 months.

Tenenbaum said Corson was discharged from the Navy in November, 1945, after serving in the Pacific theater of war.

Green Of Illinois Seen As Prospect For GOP Nominee

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP)—Republican National Chairman B. Carroll Reece said today Illinois Governor Dwight D. Green "is certainly within the category of prospective presidential nominees."

Green, Reece told a news conference, has been "an able governor inspiring respect for him throughout the country."

"I am not expressing an opinion as national chairman," Reece added, "on the merits of presidential possibilities and do not want to be understood as saying anything prejudicial to anyone."

"I will say, however, that there never was a time when we have had so large a group of Republicans who are recognized by the people as qualified for president."

In reply to a question, Reece said he included former Governor Harold E. Stassen among the GOP presidential contenders.

New Home Showing Attracts Escanaba Folks By Hundreds

They threw a new house open for public inspection at the Erickson housing project yesterday, expecting a modicum of public interest and a number of visitors.

They got the interest, and they got the visitors—one behind the other in a single file parade, all afternoon.

By this time, the four men who go to make up the Erickson housing project undoubtedly realize the full significance to the Escanaba public of this first-in-Escanaba-history of a showing of a brand new house. And that significance is increased a hundredfold by the house shortage.

The five-room, cement-block house will be open for inspection all day today at the project located at 21st street and 5th avenue north.

Typical of the other houses of the project—six in all, and they vary in minor details just enough to give them individuality—the house is laid on a solid concrete base, with sleepers and moisture proof paper between the concrete and the hardwood flooring.

The cement blocks have been treated with three coats of water-proofing, inside and out. Furring strips, overlaid with insulating paper and celotex over that, provide the dead air space for insulation. The celotex, of course, is plastered.

The ceilings have a four-inch layer of rock wool, further insulating the house.

Each house has two bedrooms, both having good closet space; a 5x8 ft. storage space adjoining the bedroom entrances; a 6x7 ft. bathroom; ample kitchen space; and a living-room notable for a large picture window.

There are some variations in arrangement of rooms and windows, and some of the houses are provided with vestibule entrances. But there is no variation in the quality of the construction. All the houses have been built according to strict F.H.A. overment standards.

The display house has been furnished by the courtesy of the Home Supply company. The cost of the furnishings as they stand is approximately $1400.00.

Chinese Confusing To Poster Girl In 'March Of Dimes'

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—Nancy Drury, four-year-old March of Dimes poster girl from Louisville, Ky., saw her first Chinese today and found them clever—but confusing.

Guest of honor at a luncheon at Lee's restaurant, the infantile paralysis victim, whose sweet face and yellow dress are a familiar sight throughout the nation, tried hard to understand the words of the Chinese children who entertained her, but frequently asked, "what did you say?"

And since Nancy had already had luncheon at her hotel and couldn't quite get the knack of chopsticks, she wasn't able to do justice to a meal of har kow (shrimp pastry), mar lai go (sweet bun), moo goo pan (mixed vegetables with chicken), mein (noodles), and cha chu pak (roast pork bun).

And a crowd of newsreel and still photographers only added to her confusion.

Nancy was accompanied by Jerry King, 9, of New York, 1942 March of Dimes poster boy, and her father, Frank Drury, of Louisville.

Turnaround Record Set In New York By Queen Elizabeth

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Queen Elizabeth, holder of the trans-Atlantic speed record, sailed today for England after accomplishing what Cunard Line officials said was the fastest "turn around" ever attempted by one of its vessels in peace time.

The 83,673-ton luxury liner sailed from New York only 32 hours after its arrival on a storm-delayed westward crossing. Aboard were 2,188 passengers.

The fast "turn around" was attempted in order to compensate for the full day the vessel lost the westward crossing because of high seas and gales.

The 1,273-man crew worked around the clock preparing the huge ship for the return trip. Among the crew's tasks was that of pumping 5,000 tons of fuel oil and 3,000 tons of fresh water into the liner.

Walker Cup Golfer Decides To Be Pro

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 18 (AP)—Cary Middlecott, 26-year-old amateur golfer who was named a member of the United States Walker Cup team last Saturday, announced tonight that he had decided to turn professional.

The gangling dentist said he had determined on the spot "long before I was accepted" for the team, and that he felt "it would be unfair to the alternates on the team for me to go to England to play when I knew that I was going to turn professional afterward."

L'Anse Wins Over Negaunee, 51 to 47

Negaunee — L'Anse beat Negaunee here Saturday night, 51 to 47 before a capacity crowd. However it was a thriller. Negaunee trailed all the way until two minutes before the end before going into the lead, 41 to 40. L'Anse snapped right back into the lead at 44 all. L'Anse was not to be denied and took the lead once more, this time for good.

Schram, Escanaba, and Cameron, Gladstone, officiated.

Dark Horse Leads In Richmond Open

Richmond, Calif., Jan. 18 (AP)—Darkhorse George Schouh of San Bruno, Calif., shooting a sizzling 65 today, apparently clinched third round leadership of the 72 hole $10,000 Richmond open golf tournament with a 197.

The 28 year old Californian, who served as assistant professional at White Plains, N. Y. in 1946 not only displaced the previous leader, U. S. Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago but jumped ahead of the latter by four strokes.

Mangrum, who led the first two rounds, had a third round 70 for his 54-hole count of 201. Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Texas, with a 69 was right on Mangrum's heels at 202.

French Troops Mop Up Hanoi Hideouts, Find Suicide Cult

Hanoi, Jan. 17 (Delayed) (AP)—French troops, using airplanes, artillery, rifles and grenades, mopped up air raid shelters and basements in the southern suburb of University City today where they encountered a new Viet-Nameese suicide cult called the "Cam Thu," or "Volunteers of the Dead."

(Paris dispatches said the French cleared a circular area extending 2 1/2 miles from the center of the city, killing numerous nationalists and taking 150 prisoners.)

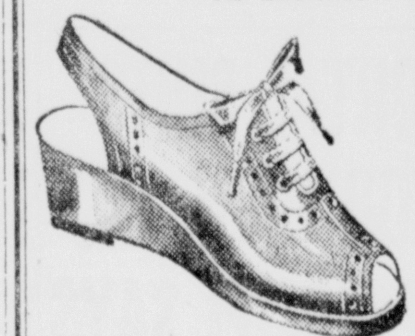

Six French Spitfires and artillery were used to demolish or damage three buildings held by the Tu-Ve, Viet-Nameese youth group. Then a line of French paratroopers moved across the rice paddies and battled in the underground hideaways.

The Tu-Ve fled, but the "Volunteers of the Dead" remained to fight it out until death. French officers said the new cult was patterned after Japanese suicide squads.

HOOSIERS CLICK, 50-48
Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 18 (AP)—Indiana's Hoosiers overcame a nine-point Iowa lead to beat the Hawkeye basketball team tonight, 50 to 48, before a capacity crowd of 9,330 Western conference fans.

TAQUAMENON IS STATE PARK

Conservation Commission Dedicates About 17,000 Acres

Newberry — Though popularly regarded for years as a state park, Tahquamenon falls achieved that status legally only this month, when the conservation commission formally dedicated about 17,000 acres (11,500 acres of it state-owned) for park purposes. The land is in a block about two miles wide along about 12 1/2 miles of the river. Since 1942 the land at the falls has been part of Lake Superior state forest, and as part of the forest its accessibility to the public and the preservation of its scenic beauty were assured.

At the time of dedication the commission reviewed plans for development of the falls area, and discussed the establishment of a boat service from the mouth of the river to the lower falls similar to that now operating from the big falls upstream.

New Gas Turbine Promises Lower Railroad Costs

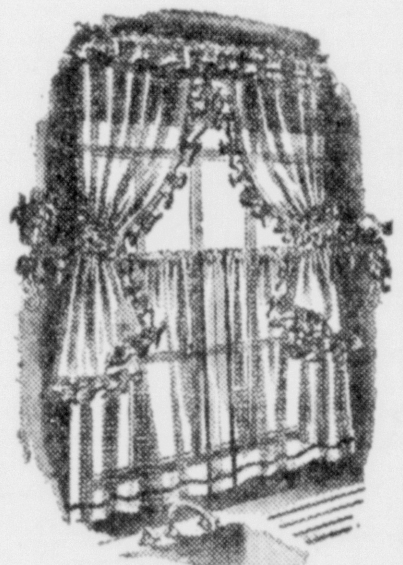

Houghton, Mich.—The revolutionary new gas turbine locomotive burning powdered coal offers great hope to the railroads for lowering fuel costs, and for maintaining bituminous coal as the standard railroad fuel, said Charles F. Kottcamp of Baltimore, Md., tonight before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology.

Mr. Kottcamp is assistant to the research director of the Locomotive Development Committee of Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., which sponsors the $2,000,000 development program deriving financial support from several coal-carrying railroads and bituminous coal producers. The first two railroad gas turbines are expected to be tested in the rails early in 1948.

Experience in Europe proves the feasibility of the gas turbine as railroad motive power, declared Mr. Kottcamp. Based on this experience, he estimated its anticipated operating cost at about 26 cents per mile, as compared with 56 to 60 cents per mile for a Diesel-electric. On main-line service this can achieve a saving of $60,000 to $80,000 per year per locomotive, he said.

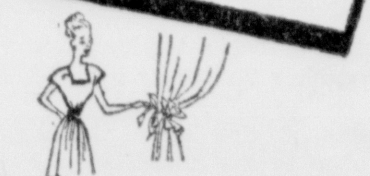

Among the inherent advantages of the gas turbine are that it requires no water, has low weight, small space requirements, no reciprocating parts, and low lubricating costs. It promises low maintenance costs, and it is "smokeless" because of the large amount of excess air.

Mr. Kottcamp described the me-

Molten Iron Produced At Foundry In Iron Mt.

Iron Mountain—When, at precisely 5:35 p. m. Monday, H. P. (Pete) Kreulen, a vice-president of Grede Foundries, Inc., Milwaukee, drove a steel bar into the top of the huge cupola at the new Grede foundry in Kingsford, releasing a sputtering flow of white-hot iron into the waiting buckets, a new era in the industrial life of the community was born, for it was the first time in the history of Dickinson county that molten iron has ever been produced here, in marketable form and quantity.

It is a melting, rather than a smelting process, but molten iron is still the result.

In that first, sparkling glow, too, there was achieved another romantic chapter in the history of a community begun in the year 1879, when the late Dr. N. P. Hulst first discovered iron ore on lands owned by the late H. A. Chapin, then of Niles, Mich., and on property which later was developed as the Chapin mine—for many years the most famous operation of its kind in the world because of its size and the quality of ore produced.

Perhaps, after all, it was the moment in which iron came home to the land of its birth, for never before, in this community, has the critical metal been produced so near to the raw material from which it is fashioned. Here yesterday, within a few short blocks of the mine which, in its 53 active years, produced nearly 28,000,000 tons of iron ore, the first ton of gray iron was brought forth. Perhaps this thought entered the minds of many persons, some pioneers of the community, who witnessed the impressive ceremony.

Anxious Moment
It was an anxious moment for Arthur L. Grede, vice-president and secretary of Grede Foundries; for "Pete" Kreulen and for the foundry experts who had been drafted from the Wisconsin plants of Grede Foundries for the occasion. Although scheduled for mid-afternoon, tapping was delayed until the practiced eye of Pete Kreulen, gazing often and intently into the roaring furnace, saw what it wanted to see. And when Kreulen finally gave the signal, men sprang to their posts, while the visitors moved back to safer points of vantage, watching with obvious amazement the first operation in the first, modern foundry ever to be built here.

Production of the first gray iron in the new foundry came after a busy day of preparation during which the starting crew of 54 men diligently mixed sand, made cores and performed a hundred other jobs. All except the dozen or more Grede veterans were novices at it, but all pitched in with everything they had.

With Arthur Grede in the group which stood about the cupola, awaiting the "zero" hour were F. A. Flodin and W. B. Thompson, president and vice-president of the Lake Shore Engineering company, whose machine shop, adjoining the foundry to the west—and all under one roof—was started last Nov. 1. About 125 men were at work yesterday in the combined plant, including 75 in the machine shop.

Soviet Russia Wants To Use Arctic Island As Base

Washington, (SS.)—The importance of Spitzbergen in world strategy is emphasized again in the recent reported request of the Soviet Union to Norway for permission to use this northern island in the Arctic ocean for a military base. Hitler recognized its importance when he sent Nazi forces against it in 1943.

Spitzbergen is a group of bleak mountainous islands, possessions of Norway since 1925, that is located nearly half way from Norway itself to the North Pole and some 600 miles east of Greenland. Military bases on one of them could play an important part in the control of shipping passing north of Norway to Finland and Russian ports, and perhaps offset military bases established by any other nation on Iceland. Spitzbergen also has value as location for a weather station, and it is on the Great Circle route by way of the North Pole from Europe to Alaska.

The Norwegians call the island group Svalbard, Spitzbergen, or Svalbard, is applied usually to the main island of the archipelago. This island has some 25,000 square miles of area. It was once noted for the whale fishing in its vicinity, also for walrus fishing. In recent years its particular value has been its coal mines, from which about 700,000 tons have been taken each year.

Spitzbergen is too far north to produce foodstuffs. Its climate is not as severe as might be expected, however, as its western coast is warmed by the North Atlantic drift. It is less severe than the climate of corresponding Greenland. Vessels may approach the west coast during most of the year.

Amundsen and Byrd used a base on Spitzbergen in 1926 from which they took off to reach the North Pole. Wilkins used it in 1928 for his flight over the pole to Alaska. Scientific expeditions

3 Michigan Tech Teachers Raised

Houghton — Three Michigan College of Mining and Technology faculty members were advanced in rank at the latest meeting of the board of control. President Grover C. Dillman announced today. Ray Marcotte and G. R. Elwell are promoted from assistant to associate professors. B. Franz Schubert, director of music, becomes an assistant professor.

Prof. Marcotte is a native of the Copper Country and an alumnus of Michigan Tech. He joined the college staff as instructor in metallurgical engineering in 1934.

Prof. Elwell's degrees are from the University of Pennsylvania. After much industrial experience he joined the Tech faculty in 1937, in the mechanical engineering department.

Prof. Schubert is an alumnus of the University of Illinois and studied also at the Columbia Conservatory of Music. He joined the Tech staff in 1939, and was on leave of absence for three and a half years as an army sergeant.

Gas Tax Increase?

THE proposed increase in state gasoline taxes from three cents to five cents a gallon, advanced by Senator Joseph Cloon, of Wakefield, is a revenue bill that should be held in abeyance until a greater degree of clarity is reached on the state's entire financial problem.

Senator Cloon's gas tax increase scheme, divided as he proposes it, would do nothing to cure the state's financial headache, created by the sales tax diversion amendment. The increase would add $25,000,000 to the taxpayers' bill, plus whatever other tax increases may be voted later to balance the state's budget.

Piece-meal tax legislation, such as that proposed by Senator Cloon, is undesirable when the people do not know what other tax increases may be adopted to straighten out the financial mess that the sales tax diversion amendment created.

The American Petroleum Industries committee, opposing all proposed increased taxes on gasoline, makes a good point in revealing that state and federal taxes even now constitute 42 per cent of the retail price of gasoline.

The state legislature should withhold action on any proposals for additional taxes until the entire financial structure is carefully reviewed and the specific needs are clarified. The lawmakers can act with much greater intelligence with these facts at their command.

Divorces on Increase

DURING 1946, 94 marriages went on the rocks in Delta county and ended in the divorce court. The experience here, however, is no different than the situation that is being observed throughout the nation.

Marriages also are mounting, but judging from Delta county statistics the ratio of increase for divorces is far greater than the marriage rate. In 1941, for instance, there were 312 marriages and 40 divorces while in 1946 there were 471 weddings and 94 couples went to court to sever the nuptial knot.

Many of the divorces are a result of hasty marriages during the war. It has happened in previous wars. Wars create emotional upsets, and young people rush into matrimony after brief courtships. Wartime separation of wives from their husbands created conditions making toward family disagreements. Another factor was the desertion of the home by wives to go to work in defense plants and in other jobs. And added to the conditions making for blasted romances has been the additional supply of money which has caused many couples to leave the home to enjoy outside amusements. Easy divorce laws also have encouraged many couples to get separate ways, rather than try to patch up their differences and overlook the failings of each other.

The growing divorce problem is attracting national attention, and it is to be expected that it will receive more careful study in the future and that efforts will be made to improve and preserve the institution of marriage. It is reasonable to expect that the divorce rate will decline after the nation returns to normal peacetime living.

Hazards in Travel

NONE of the popular means of transportation appear to be immune from disastrous accidents, nowadays.

Headlined news about airline accidents just about pass from the newspaper pages when a train wreck grabs the spotlight. The latest event of this type is the wreck of the Southern Pacific Owl in California, with seven deaths and scores of injured. Bus lines also have their share of accidents and, of course, the private automobile leads all the rest in traffic casualties.

And even after the traveler gets out of his conveyance and believes himself safe and sound in his hotel room, he may find his security is not as real as he thinks. There have been a series of hotel tragedies in Chicago, Atlanta, Dubuque, Saskatoon and elsewhere in recent months that make one wonder whether there is such a thing as the fireproof hotel.

All these tragedies have a direct relation to the great increase of travel during the wartime and postwar years. Transportation companies and hotels have been doing more business than ever was their good fortune in the prewar era. And they have been short of help, and many of the employees they have are inexperienced and untrustworthy. Such conditions produce carelessness, the major cause of the disasters that have taken a heavy toll of human lives and property in the past few years.

Twenty-Cent Sodas

ICE cream sodas have gone from ten to fifteen to twenty cents, and dealers say they'd as soon not handle them even at that price, as for any profit is concerned.

But twenty-cent sodas are beyond the reach of a good many people, and sales have dropped off materially. The situation will take care of itself eventually, and in the meantime a lot of soda lovers will have to go thirsty.

No other drink in all the world compares in value, health or satisfaction with a glass of pure cold water. Under the stress of events, lots of people are finding this out, and the discovery will be one of the few benefits of the war and its aftermath. Our advice to those who do not realize the benefits of aqua pura as a beverage is to try it sometime.

Small Papers Pinched

THE Kansas City Star has purchased the paper mill at Flambeau, Wis., to assure itself of a sizable portion of its newsprint needs. In going into the manufacturing field, the Star is following the example set by other large publishers, who have been acquiring mills in the United States and Canada.

In recent years, a number of mills, like those at Escanaba and Manistique, have discontinued the manufacture of newsprint and changed over to the production of other types of paper. This development, along with the wartime shortage of labor, has reduced the output of newsprint, and so the large publishers are taking steps to control the entire production of their product — from the tree to the printed newspaper or magazine.

But it is a disturbing trend from the standpoint of small city newspapers, who are not in a position to go into the newsprint manufacturing business.

PIKERS PREVAIL (Chicago Daily News)

Democracy still rules the race tracks. The rumor that the $2 betting windows would be taken out at the pari-mutuels is deflated by the annual report of the Illinois Racing Board. In 1946, some 34,739,619 $2 bets were placed at the tracks compared to 28,600,664 in 1945.

The $2 bettors wagered 35.08 per cent of all the money risked on the gee-gees. In 1945 the $2 boys and girls accounted for 34.04 per cent of the wagering.

The only evidence of inflation to be found at the tracks is in the total money bet, which was $198,042,882 in 1946 compared to $168,060,010 in 1945. A gain of $29,982,872 in a year's turnover is pretty good for any gambling house.

The declared purpose of Illinois racing is to better the breed of the American running horse. It should be improving rapidly.

CHOWDER, THAT IS (Chowder Science Monitor)

Chowder is both a fightin' and a feastin' word. Happily, the furor of the former is usually forgotten in the pleasure of the latter.

But it takes a great deal less than the choice of the New York variety of clam chowder for stellar billing on the menu of the United States Senate Restaurant to mobilize New England.

From the golden shores of Nantucket Sound to the rockbound coast of Maine, hardy Yankees—clam rakes in hand—are ready to defend clam chowder—pure and undefiled.

Independence is a heritage and a habit with these New Englanders. And, to their way of thinking, clam chowder should be forever freed from the tomato introduced by the burghers of Old New York and traitorously adopted by Rhode Island.

Yes, Sir, let the Senate chefs honor each State with its traditional dishes. But let them be wary of chowders. Unless, of course, they would like to form an investigating commission — say a Commission on the Proper Use, Development, and Future of Clam Chowder.

What pleasant times would await such an investigation! New England and New York would vie to produce the most successful "sittings." The evidence, need we add, would be carefully weighed. And the star witness would, in either case, be that bowl of simmering, steaming, savory chowder, perennial objective of both debater and trencherman.

From M. McC., Fort Wayne: Recently you stated that Shakespeare used the word "pantaloons" in his famous "All the world's a stage" speech in Hamlet. Tch, tch, tch! It's from Act 2, Scene 7, of As You Like It.

Answer: Right. When I called the mistake to the attention of my chief proofreader, I. C. Poorly, he could only say: "Well, after all, Ms. Colby, m'l only muban."

From J. C., Omaha: Isn't the word stethoscope illegitimate? It seems to me it should be stethophone. What's the good word, Pancho?

Answer: Stethoscope is formed from stetho-, "breast, chest," plus -scope, "an instrument for viewing or observing." Dictionary, stetho- is "s," a term proposed as a more accurate word for stethoscope. Your logic, therefore, is good, J. C., for the suffix -phone ordinarily means, "an instrument for transmitting sound."

From T. S. C., Houston: In his last speech, Secretary Byrnes said "strenth." Many others do so. Please comment.

Answer: Both "strenth" and "lenth" are dialectal. Careful speakers will not admit the "g" sound. Indeed, it is good

Washington—Federal aid to bolster America's declining public school system is likely to be shoved aside in the great economy drive now on in Congress. But that will not happen without a contest.

There are indications that opinion is at long last aroused over the failing condition of public education in almost every state in the Union. The people back home are letting their congressmen know what this means in terms of closed schools and hopelessly crowded classrooms. Editorial writers are dwelling on the danger to a nation that neglects the fundamental.

In principle most members of Congress would be for some degree of federal aid. But it is over the size and kind of aid that they disagree. And because they disagree, violently and in a variety of ways, the probability is for no action at all.

FEDERAL AID BILL—

In the last Congress, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio joined with two Democrats, Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama and Sen. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, in sponsoring a bill which provided a moderate federal subsidy for education. About $250,000,000 a year would be allocated to states unable, out of their own revenues, to spend a minimum of $40 a year for each child of school age. The state would receive an allocation based on the proportion of its income devoted to education.

About 33 states would be eligible for aid under the bill. Texas would get $21,758,000, North Carolina $21,732,000, Alabama $18,848,000, Georgia $17,406,000, and these sums would range down to $73,000 for Montana. Fifteen states, those with high educational standards and large revenues from concentrated wealth, such as California, New York and Massachusetts, would get no benefits.

At the other extreme is a proposal to make up to $2,000,000,000 a year available to the nation's schools, without regard to need in the separate states. This will shortly be reintroduced under the sponsorship of Senators James E. Murray and Claude Pepper, Democrats, and probably Sen. Wayne Morse, Republican.

The Taft-Hill-Thomas proposal will also be reintroduced. Taft is for it again. But he does not hold out much hope for its passage. Congress will turn down the Murray-Pepper-Morse proposal, as Taft sees it, and this will kill all chance of any aid to education.

If Taft set out earnestly to work for the Moderate bill, it would almost certainly pass the Senate. It might even get by the House. But this is an economy year and the Republicans are looking for ways to cut down on federal spending. Taft might "get by" if he gave the proposal lip service without worrying too much over whether it was passed.

PAROCHIAL ISSUE—

There are at least two major differences between the Murray and the Taft schools of thought on this matter. One, of course, is the difference in the amount of money appropriated. A second major difference is that the Murray bill makes the federal money available to all schools, Parochial as well as Public.

Here is another source of controversy. Taft believes that only public schools should get federal funds allocated to education. To allow Parochial schools to get similar benefits is to override requirements fixed by the states themselves, as the Senator from Ohio sees it. The raises the Catholic issue, which has been acute in some states where free bus transportation for public and non-public school pupils is in dispute.

The two most powerful lobbies pushing aid to education are the National Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers, an AFL union. The Teachers' union will fight hard for the Murray bill, with its big appropriation. The NEA, an independent organization, would probably settle for the more moderate Taft proposal.

Jealousies and rivalries divide these two organizations. This further complicates the problem of getting agreement on a measure which the present Congress would pass.

No other issue illustrates quite so well the paralysis that is likely to freeze this Congress into inaction. And it will be so easy to pass the blame along to someone else. The Conservatives can say, "if it weren't for those radicals, with their impossible, harebrained proposals, we might get a moderate measure adopted." The radicals will say, "if it weren't for those reactionaries, who want to block everything, we could make progress."

So the ball will be batted back and forth, and the score when the game ends is likely to be zero or close to it.

ON CATCHING COLDS—A friend of mine recently remarked, "I see you've caught a cold." We admitted it was obvious that we had a cold, but denied that we had "caught" it. Rather, we pointed out that people hasten to "catch" a cold, but no one hurries to "catch" a cold. Certainly we had not pursued the cold we now suffered. Rather the cold had caught us and there was little we could do about it except to follow the doctor's orders.

Dunathan

Being a person of moderately good health except for colds, we have become rather intimately acquainted with the procedures recommended by medical science in combating the so-called "common cold." Incidentally, why anybody calls a cold a "common" thing we are at a loss to know. All of the colds we have had are most uncommon, and each one adds a few symptoms not previously discovered.

LOST WORKING TIME—We read an article the other day which described the mounting incidence of colds during the winter months, reaching their peak in February, and then declining to a low during the summertime. Although there were some statistics presented on the number of lost working hours due to colds, we've forgotten the national total.

In our own case it would average about three days per year. Figuring the employed population of the United States at 70,000,000 persons, the lost working time would be (based on our experience) average 210,000,000 working days per year. That is certainly nothing to sneeze at.

Added to the actual loss of time is the loss in efficiency while a cold is developing, and as it declines. The cold sufferer is of little use to anyone while he is "coming down" with an attack, and he is a liability while recovering.

VITAMINS AND SUCH—During the years of our experience with colds we have had various remedies prescribed to us. These ranged (in the earlier days) from a liquid diet to hot baths, to the later treatments with drugs and powders blown, sprayed and inhaled. All of them helped and so we have come to rely upon a combination of treatments.

We have also come to the conclusion that a cold of any considerable discomfort is cause enough to consult your physician, who can advise a specific remedy that will bring you back into circulation faster than applying all of the free advice so generously received from laymen.

One winter we believed we had arrived at a state of immunity from colds after fortifying our system with assorted vitamins. Unfortunately our hopes were dashed, for in the spring we came down with an out-of-season attack. We did get through the winter, however, and that was worth something.

JUST GO TO BED—Several years ago we remember calling on one doctor and asking him for help in curing our cold. You will note that this must have been several years ago because he said, "Young man, the best thing to cure a cold is to go home and go to bed and stay there until you are well."

We noticed that he seemed a

Little thick-sounding himself, and when he coughed he carefully turned his head aside and avoided it in a handkerchief. Thereupon we remarked that he appeared to have a cold, and asked why wasn't he home in bed?

"Young man," he replied severely, "I have work to do."

Rather lamely we commented that we also had work to do. While we would prefer to stay home and play wet nurse to our cold, we found it necessary to keep up at least the semblance of our daily routine. As you have probably guessed by this time we didn't go to bed—that day. Two days later we had to, unable to longer hold up under the strain.

IN THE OLD DAYS—Hot mustard baths for the feet, salt water snuffed resoundingly up the nose, copious drinks of hot lemonade—often with a generous dash of whiskey—on retiring, and the application of hot bricks at the feet and more than adequate layers of bed clothing were some of the old-time remedies for colds. In many homes a wool sock was fastened around the neck, covering over an application of camphorated oil. And it was not unusual to find the majority of people subscribe to the theory if the patient was kept in bed sweating like a convict on a rock pile, he would recover both from the cold and the treatment.

THE "NIGHT AIR"—Some of the early-day treatments harked back to the "night air is bad for you" school of thought. Those were the days before the common man knew the difference between Washington—When the average American thinks of the Senate judiciary committee, he thinks of a dignified group of legislators solemnly pondering important legal problems. When the new judiciary committee met in executive session the other morning, that, however, was not the prevailing atmosphere. Nor is it likely to be during the next two years, in view of the strong personalities sitting on opposite sides of the table.

New chairman is Pontifical Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, Republican, who never did get along with pompous Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada. McCarran is now ranking Democrat on the committee, while the ranking Republican behind Wiley is fearless, unpredictable Senator Bill Langer of North Dakota. Committee members are looking for some beautiful scraps.

A forerunner came this week. McCarran was arguing for an early decision regarding committee personnel—how many clerks and secretaries would be assigned to the Democrats, and which members of the staff.

Testily, Chairman Wiley advised: "Hold your horses."

"I am holding my horses, but I can't hold them forever while you make up your mind," shot back McCarran.

"I guess I should have said 'hold your jackasses,'" replied Wiley, his face lighting up in appreciation of his own wit.

"When I think of jackasses," countered the Democrat senator from Nevada, "I think of you."

"You'd better be careful," snapped Wiley. "This is a jackass that will kick."

"I'm not worried," said McCarran. "I've always been able to step back out of the way in time."

FDR JR. BLASTS HOUSING—

The Office of New Housing Expediter Frank Creedon is still reverberating from a tongue-lashing administered by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., over veterans housing.

F. D. R. Jr., won out, but, not before some un-parlorlike language singled the long-distance wires between Washington and New York.

The son of the late president had learned of an order on veterans' rental housing, sent confidentially to regional housing officials, by which the American Legion would have dominated nationwide meetings on veterans' rental problems. The order instructed field officials to contact Legion and Chamber of Commerce representatives to assist in sponsoring the meetings.

It so happens that both the Legion and the Chamber of Commerce vigorously opposed the Wyatt Housing program, yet no other organizations were mentioned by name in the official order.

When F. D. R., Jr., National Housing Chairman of the American Veterans' committee, was shown a copy of the confidential order, he grabbed a telephone and put in a call to new Housing Expediter Creedon. Creedon had left for the day, so the call was taken by a special assistant, William E. O'Brien.

"I'm new on the job here," O'Brien pleaded when young Roosevelt began to protest about the order. "I'll check and call you back tomorrow morning."

"Well, you'd better make damn sure that memorandum is changed," declared Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT OPPOSES LEGION—

O'Brien called back next day to explain that the order had been issued by Federal Housing Administrator Raymond Foley. Creedon had nothing to do with it, O'Brien said.

"I don't care who is responsible; I want it changed," demanded Roosevelt. "All five of the major veterans groups should be asked to participate in the rent meetings. Furthermore, labor, consumer and civic groups should be represented in addition to business leaders."

"I'll do my best," promised O'Brien. "I won't be satisfied with anything less than a complete change of the order," said Roosevelt. "Otherwise, I intend to blast this thing wide open in the newspapers."

A short time later, Roosevelt's New York telephone began buzzing again. This time Sam Riddick, Creedon's expert on Veterans' Affairs, was on the line.

"What's the trouble, Frank?" he inquired. "You've tossed a bombshell into the agency down here."

"I'm going to begin tossing some real bombshells unless that order is withdrawn and amended," replied Roosevelt. "What are you trying to do—to turn the housing program over to the Chamber of Commerce and Paul Griffith of the American Legion?"

Riddick assured Roosevelt that the A. V. C. and all other vet groups would be equally represented at the rental meetings. He also promised to see that local housing expediter set up advisory committees of the five veterans' groups to meet with business, labor and civic leaders in different communities.

"Veterans who have the consumer, not the producer, viewpoint should be named to the committees," said Roosevelt. "I mean war veterans who have had housing problems of their own."

Statistics show that 12 schools burn in this country each week. Aw, be patient, kids!

A man arrested 48 times in New York wouldn't give his address. We know—jail!

Bad eggs are sometimes welcome—but not after they are broke.

EXPECT AIRLINE START DELAYED

U. P. Service May Not Begin Until About Next Summer

Operation of Wisconsin Central Airlines' planes on a planned route to Escanaba and certain other Upper Peninsula cities must be delayed until after airports on the route are inspected and meet Civil Aeronautics Administration requirements, and service may not get under way until late next summer.

"Our starting date is not very definite, although it probably will be before summer is over," according to Francis M. Higgins, Clintonville, Wis., president of Wisconsin Central Airlines. He added that he and other officials of the airline expected to confer with U. P. airport officials soon.

CAA, approving Wisconsin Central's application for five proposed routes, authorized Higgins to begin operations as soon as a "reasonable number" of airports on the routes are completed to accommodate DC-3 transports, which carry 21 passengers and travel about 150 miles an hour.

Cities on the aerial route are Milwaukee, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Appleton, Green Bay, Sturgeon Bay, Marinette-Menominee, Escanaba, Iron Mountain, Hancock-Houghton and Ironwood. Four other CAA-approved routes are contemplated by Wisconsin Central, giving good air transportation connections with Chicago, Duluth and Minneapolis.

Year Around Flights
Higgins said Wisconsin Central is not yet sure what equipment it will use. Its brief to the CAA, however, obliges it to use 10-passenger Beechcraft or larger ships. Beechcraft A and D 21-passenger DC-3's travel about 150 MPH, but Beechcraft require slightly less landing space.

In its present operation of a route touching Madison, Milwaukee, Clintonville, Wausau, Rhineland, Land O'Lakes and Superior, Wisconsin Central has stopped flights during the winter. But Higgins said flights on the recently approved routes would be year around and perhaps on a day and night basis. The flights will be at least daily, while the Chicago-Duluth run will have at least two or three flights. That route probably will go into operation first.

The line will carry passengers, air mail, cargo and express. The CAA approval allows Wisconsin Central to serve 43 cities in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Minnesota, but not all of them will be served at first because of inadequate airport facilities. "The line is now studying adequacy of the ports."

Lengthen Runways
The Marquette airport, between Negaunee and that city, is large enough to handle airline traffic as is the Menominee-Marquette airport runways there are 2,800 feet long.

Escanaba's municipal airport, with 2,540-foot runways, may not be large enough to accommodate standard air liners, but extension of runways to 3,000 feet could be accomplished next spring. The Houghton county airport is not sufficiently developed to handle air traffic, but a development program is under way and the port may be ready — with mile-long concrete runways — by spring. Gogebic county's airport at Ironwood has tentative plans for improvements to qualify it for airline traffic.

The postal department is expected to make full use of all air facilities. Feeder lines from Upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin will speed mail to all parts of the country.

Smelt Harvest Here Is Largest In Five Years

That big little fish, the smelt, whose appearance, disappearance and reappearance in the Great Lakes is causing much head-scratching among the ichthyologists apparently is making its strongest comeback in five years. It was reported yesterday from the Hansen & Jensen Fish Market that daily production arriving in Escanaba goes over 1,000 pounds, and the take is expected to go higher as commercial fishermen get their equipment all out. On Friday, 1,100 pounds of smelt were taken, the day before it was 1,300 pounds. One fisherman alone accounted for 440 pounds.

The story of the mysterious smelt started a score or more years ago when they were first noticed on their spring spawning runs at Beulah in Lower Michigan. Later they spread to all of the Great Lakes, and reached their peak—at least in commercial take—about 1940. Then for the next three or four years they virtually disappeared, and the one-time elaborate smelt carnivals sponsored by many cities became little more than a memory.

Now the smelt are apparently making a comeback and bidding for attention again. A place awaits him on the tables of the nation, for the smelt became popular during the period of his abundance.

Commercial fishermen are still undecided whether the smelt is good or bad for their business. In Green bay waters the reappearance of the smelt is accompanied by an increase in the number of whitefish being taken.

Before smelt reached their astonishing numbers in the early 1940's, fishing for herring and whitefish had been fairly good in the bay. During peak years of smelt abundance, the take of herring and whitefish declined greatly. Since the sensational and still unexplained smelt die-off in the spring of 1943, commercial fishermen have reported fishing for herring and whitefish improving.

The situation is complicated, the conservation department reports, by the fact that it is not a matter of the same fishermen taking whichever species is currently abundant. Larger, established operators take most of the herring and whitefish; many smaller operators with only net licenses set most of the under-ice smelt nets.

Girl Nibbler Has No Stomach, Likes Herring And Beer

Washington — (AP) — Peggy Ann Elkerson, aged 8, has virtually no stomach.

But that doesn't worry Peggy Ann.

Stomach or no stomach, she thrives. She's a nibbler. Instead of eating three meals a day, she nibbles and sips almost constantly—peanuts, salt herring and beer. Those are her favorites.

Physicians discovered Peggy Ann's condition when she was two months old and appeared to be suffering from malnutrition. They kept her at the hospital nearly a year. After she returned home a doctor called.

"I found Peggy Ann sipping from a bottle of beer," the physician related. "Her mother said the baby refused milk, but loved beer."

Physicians said Peggy Ann has a tiny tube-like stomach, but it never developed. Digestion is performed by the intestines.

BYRD TO TEST SNOW ROLLERS

Mechanized Exploration Of Antarctic Is In View

Washington—Mechanized exploration of the Antarctic may become possible as result of tests to be conducted by the Navy's expedition under the technical direction of Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, the Navy said today.

Equipment for compacting snow for the use of vehicles and methods for preparing vehicles for use in the snow are scheduled for tests. The equipment was designed by engineers of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks. Other experiments to aid overland travel in Antarctica will include determination of the differences in the properties of snow and ice at the extremely low temperatures of the polar regions compared with their properties in the temperate zones.

With the results of the experiments, engineers hope to design vehicles to replace the traditional dogsleds used in polar exploration. The present Byrd Expedition's attack on the problem of land travel on the wastes of the Antarctic will include devices for compacting the snow for vehicles to operate on top of the cold, white surface.

Drier and more powdery than the snow that falls in the United States the polar snow becomes a blinding swirl dangerous to a traveler from the slightest gust of wind.

Some of the scientific problems to be tackled with special instruments on the current expedition are load tests, penetrometer readings, compression, bending, punching and shear tests of the ice and snow.

Two variations of a German model silt snow roller, a standard sheepfoot roller, groups of pontoons and snow drags will all be tested for use in compacting the snow for travel.

For possible use on airstrips, a snow surface heater has been designed to convert the snow into ice. A tractor pulls a compressor and heater on toboggan runners with a fuel oil tank mounted on top. By melting the snow so it can form ice, this equipment is expected to provide a fast method of preparing the surface of an airstrip with solid ice.

Hamburg and Bremen are the chief German seaports.

Droves Of Newsmen Plan Moscow Trip To Cover Big Four

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—The largest number of reporters to visit Moscow in many a year is planning to go there by March 10 to cover the work of the big-four foreign ministers on German and Austrian peace settlements.

Whether all will be able to go depends on word not yet received by the State Department from the Soviet government. The Russians have explained that they have extremely tight housing conditions in their capital. But American officials are expecting arrangements to be made for a maximum number of newsmen, and are hoping for information by Feb. 1.

Meanwhile, Michael J. McDermott, state department press officer, has received indications from more than 60 American reporters and photographers in this country and abroad, that they want to cover the conference.

Instructions Given

For the benefit of these and others who may still file applications to go, McDermott issued this week suggestions on how to proceed and what to expect in the Soviet capital.

On the basis of information previously gathered by American visitors in Moscow, he has made it clear that while the newsmen may get a warm welcome from the Russians they will be in for a cold and fairly expensive time of it.

The conference is scheduled for March 10 and in March "winter still persists in Moscow," the State Department mildly reminds the prospective traveler. "A heavy winter overcoat and rubbers are a necessity."

The department's understatement leaves much untold, according to persons familiar with the Moscow winter. Long underwear, flannel pajamas, heavy suits and shoes and a fur hat will not be out of place in the sub-zero temperatures likely to prevail.

As for expense, costs have to be figured at the rate of 12 Russian rubles for $1. Regular dinners—for which, as American restaurants say "the price of the entire determines the price of the meal"—cost a minimum of 28 rubles, about $2.33. But for one who dines in restaurant and orders by the dish, the minimum dinner check will be about 130 rubles, or $10.84. Tips will run about 10 per cent additional.

The minimum hotel cost for room with bath is given as 60 rubles a day, or $5. The price goes up from there. Foreigners in Moscow usually live in one of three generally located hotels, the National, Savoy or Metropole, the latter ordinarily housing newspapermen. A fourth modern hotel, the Moskova, also may be used to house foreigners during the conference.

The basis of Russian policy toward the press was laid down by Foreign Minister Molotov during the closing days of the recent big-four council meeting in New York. He told Secretary of State Byrnes substantially:

"The Soviet government will be happy to see the ministers in Moscow and everything will be done in spite of the housing difficulties to accommodate the correspondents and to create the most favorable conditions for their work.

"They will be able to report from Moscow on the proceedings of the conference as they reported in Paris and New York."

Officials regard that as meaning (1) that diplomats present in each council meeting will report the proceedings to the press as in Paris and New York and (2) that dispatches will be allowed to go out of Moscow without censorship and over facilities adequate to handle many thousands of words a day.

Sailing on Gripsholm

McDermott has instructed correspondents intending to make the trip to file applications—that is, requests for entry permits—at the nearest Soviet consulate. He has asked also that he be advised when this is done and later be informed of action—approved or disapproved—taken by the Soviet government.

On the basis of this information McDermott will then advise the Soviet embassy here exactly how many representatives of the American press will need conference credentials. The question of reporters going over to make direct voice broadcasts back to the United States is still up in the air. At present the Russians no not allow such broadcasts.

Some newsmen are arranging to sail from New York on the Swedish liner Gripsholm on Feb. 14 and journey from Stockholm to Moscow mainly by train. Others may fly there either in Swedish, Russian or American planes or some combination. The State Department has asked whether the Russians would object to American planes flying groups of correspondents directly from the United States or from Berlin. Roundtrip commercial air rates are more than $1,000 per passenger.

Once in Moscow the average correspondent, judging by State Department information, will find a variety of new experiences awaiting him in addition to the language and the weather.

He may get a haircut in a hotel barbershop for about 2 rubles but should tip 5 to 10 rubles. He can ride on a bus, streetcar or subway for about 20 rubles and the subway is said to be one of the best anywhere. Taxis will be difficult to obtain. The hotels will provide laundry and pressing services but probably no dry cleaning.

Money regulations in Russia as in many other European countries are strict. The traveler entering the Soviet union must declare the sum he is taking in, so that when he leaves he can take out an equal or lesser amount.

To facilitate exchange of dollars into rubles at the one-to-twelve rate, the State Department has arranged for each correspondent to deposit a fund with the department here against which he may draw rubles at the embassy in Moscow.

Japs Planned Underwater Army To Fight Invasion

BY RON ROSS

Washington, (SS).—An "underwater army" of Japanese suicide troops, operating in self-contained diving suits and armed with attack mines, was training for a "last ditch" defense of Japan's home islands when the war ended.

The "submarine kamikaze" army was one of several desperate Jap plans which included the development of submerged "foxholes" and fixed underwater torpedo installations in several harbors in preparation for the expected Allied invasion. Details of the underwater operations were disclosed here by the Navy in a report by Capt. C. G. Grimes, chief of a Naval Technical Mission to Japan.

Called Fukuryu, the underwater attack units consisted of squads of soldiers in specially designed diving suits carrying a suicide attack mine. The mine was a charge of explosive mounted on a stick with a contact fuse. The diver was to ram the front end of the stick against the bottom, end or side of a boat, blowing up the target and killing himself.

Planned as a defense against the hundreds of small landing craft used by the Allies in large invasions, the underwater attack program was scheduled to have 6,000 trained men ready for action by Oct. 15, 1945. At the end of the war, two months earlier, 4,000 men were in the underwater units with only 1,200 trained.

Diving suits for the human submarines had two oxygen tanks, each containing less than one-half a peck of oxygen, chemical air purification devices similar to those used on submarines and liquid food developed to be taken through a rubber tube. Working depth was planned to be about 16 feet.

By the end of the war men had been able to stay under the water for more than eight hours, and it was hoped to increase the time to 15 hours so that troops could enter the water before daylight and come out after dark.

Submerged positions to be built of reinforced concrete ashore and sunk into position were scheduled for production at the time the war ended. Another plan called for use of sunken cargo ships for this purpose, and "underwater foxholes," built with sections of large concrete pipe equipped with steel doors, were under experiment.

Japanese reported that non-operative merchant ships were fitted as fixed torpedo positions and sunk in the entrance to Tokyo Bay. Water-tight compartments were constructed on the vessels and three traversable torpedo tubes and a sound detector were installed, according to the Japs.

This work was done on the surface, and when it was completed the ships were sunk in position by blowing other compartments. Accommodations for 40 to 50 men were included. The men served in shifts and entered and left the position in diving suits through water chambers.

Three such installations were reported to have been located at the entrance to Tokyo bay and perhaps elsewhere, but no American divers have been sent down to investigate contacts established by sonar equipment at the suspected locations in the water. Capt. Grimes stated.

The report said that original plans for the underwater attack units began in 1944 when an invasion of the home islands was expected within a year. As the invasion threat became more imminent, greater interest and acceleration marked the program for developing equipment and training personnel for the suicide squads.

JUST LIKE OLD TIMES—Seems like the old days as passenger liners again arrive in New York crammed to the gunnels with pretty foreign females and colorful male visitors. These three, and many others, were on the SS. America when she docked the other day. Beryl Davis is an English radio singer. Spoiled Parents One Cause Of Delinquency

By ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Fla.—It is hard to grasp the full import of the tidal wave of juvenile delinquency as today reported by police and courts, by social workers, and by the grim lips of school and church. No testimony of public authorities, however, should be needed to warn readers of its sweep. You only have to scan the grist of daily news items, some perhaps dated right in your own community or neighborhood. The "teen-age situation at present is frankly bad and scientists fear that the future outlook is even worse.

"Babies Will Be Babies"

Two highlights stand out in studying the—what can it be—"infant insanity" epidemic of this postwar era:—First: The sheer gravity and depravity of the widespread offences. Literally they do not stop short of robbery, arson, torture, rape or other nameable kinds of crime. Second: The astounding, all but unbelievable, youthfulness of the perpetrators.

There was a time when an arrested and accused offender "made news" because he was still in his 'teens. Today, however, such youthfulness is a routine story, old stuff. In fact, the news-woman reader hardly bats an eye to learn that the "convicted man" has not reached 'teenhood. Not a crime on the list is missing from the current blotters—and overwhelming numbers of the guilty are in short pants or bobby-sox. The crimes are major; the criminals are minors.

Spoiled Parents One Cause

Any hunt for the taproot of today's romeo in juvenile delinquency will start with the reconstruction of parenthood and its untransferable duties. This responsibility of rearing decent children is so big a project it calls for all available aid from specialists and outside forces. But it's too personal a job to be sub-let entirely. A wayward youngster and a derelict "pop or mom" usually are but the two faces of the same bad coin. Childhoodism will ebb only when legal and financial responsibilities are placed where they belong.

Hope In Decentralization

The case of the spoiled parent can be tracked back partly to the synthetic home. I refer to the many homes which have no spiritual background and where a Bible is never read. What of enduring worth do such habitations offer to eager childhood? Now do not mistake my meaning, for I hasten to add that such a synthetic home may be streamlined with all the gaiety which the wife can give and the husband can buy. It may be among the swiftest houses in town; for police blotters will show that some of the worst horrors of delinquent juveniles involve the so-called elite. It is the home's behavior to which I refer and this has little to do with the cost of the house.

Today's congestion is floating many families from the overgrown big cities and into the smaller towns, suburbs, and countryside. Let us hope that this outbound trek will lead to revival of true home-making and real child-rearing. If blessed with such results, this nation will be far along toward solving its tragic youth problem. Pulled out of congestion's deadly orbit and influences, the normal home can re-develop a family life that will absorb and improve the young-

NEW MATERIAL USED IN BOATS

Light Metal, Glass And Plywood Promise Low Costs

New York—One-piece recreation boats of aluminum, magnesium, steel, glass, plastics and plywood have attracted much attention here at the National Motor Boat Show, and give promise of being low-cost craft both in the original investment and in maintenance.

These boats, which now take their places side by side with the familiar craft of wood construction, are due in large measure to the desire of war-developed industries to find peace-time applications for their products. This is particularly true for the light metals industries. Wartime methods of fabrication with molded plastics at low temperatures and low pressures make possible the low-cost construction of boats in a single piece.

A glass-plastic boat announced by Gar Wood, Jr., to be built by the Wood Marine Engineering Company of Tulsa, Okla., utilizes in its construction molding methods applied during the war to the manufacture of eight-foot one-piece radar domes, and which have been applied since to making of airplane wings and fuselage.

The glass used is finely divided glass fibre. This is bonded with a special plastic. The resulting boat has strength, lightness, durability and low maintenance cost. A 16-foot boat, that will carry six adults, weighs about 600 pounds. These glass-plastic boats, to be in production early this summer, will range in size from the 16-foot utility craft to 26-foot cruisers.

At least five companies, including two aircraft manufacturers, are producing boats of aluminum. The idea is not new, because aluminum craft, particularly canoes, were well tested before the war. The fact that aluminum boats need no painting, caulking or scraping is an appealing feature to purchasers.

Dow Chemical Company, heavy producer of magnesium, has entered the recreational boat field with a 12-foot, and a 16-foot, magnesium canoe. Their principal appeal is their lightness. The 12-foot hull weighs only 45 pounds, and with seats, floorboards and accessories only 75 pounds. As well as lightness, the canoes possess strength and durability.

Boats of plywood, or of laminated wood, are made by several companies. They promise durability thanks to a new phenolic resin developed during the war. The Wimper Manufacturing Company of Trenton, N. J., has molded plastic boats made of tough fiber impregnated with plastics and resins which have been tested in saltwater. Their entire boat, including keel, is in one piece.

Major Klimetz Says He's Sold On Alaska

By JACK MURPHY

Major Klimetz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregor Klimetz, 1011 Sheridan road, is a most unusual man, one of a rare, rare breed. He is happy and contented with the deal he got in the army.

With his wife, the former Georgia Lorraine Miller of Rollo, Mo., Major Klimetz has but recently returned to the United States from Anchorage, Alaska, where he has been serving as Land Rescue officer for the 10th Rescue Squadron, Alaska Air Command. So well did he like the post that he plans upon returning to Alaska, either as an Army man, or as a civilian flier for the Department of Interior's Fish and Wildlife Division.

"It's a grand deal up there," Major Klimetz said. "For me, anyway. The world's best hunting and fishing. Good skiing. Good planes. Good dog-teams. A man just couldn't ask a better deal."

Helps Harvard Expedition

Shortly before his return to the United States, Major Klimetz participated as a pilot in an Army-blessed assault upon the St. Elias Alps by the Harvard Mountaineering Club for the purpose of testing equipment designed at the Climatic Research Laboratory, Lawrence, Mass., by Captain Ben Ferris, USAMC, himself a member of the club and of the climbing party. It was the first successful assault upon the 18,008 ft. Mt. Elias.

In their thirty day trek from Yakutadits, Alaska, across a moraine of the Malapenas, the world's largest glacier, the eight members of the Harvard party (one of whom was a woman) were supplied by parachute drops of equipment and supplies.

The first drop was made at sea-level, the highest at 12,000 ft., the others at intermediate levels.

"I don't think they'd have made it without the drops," Major Klimetz said. "They were about two and a half weeks on the slope itself."

To Appear In Life Magazine

Life Magazine had a representative accompanying the climbers, and every individual connected with the assault carried a camera. From an impressive number of pictures, both still and movie, taken by the climbers, the pilots and enlisted men aboard the supplying planes, Life combed out those considered best.

"One of our fellows had a good break out of it," Major Klimetz said. "We all followed the climbers like hawks, of course, and believe me some of the canyons we flew into were really rugged. Anyway, one of the fellows who owned a movie camera got some dandy shots of the climbers moving up a slope. He sold quite a bunch to the newsreels. The whole 10th Squadron was set up over it."

Has Diversified Equipment

The Squadron is equipped for all possible rescue work on land or sea. They are furnished with helicopters, PTC crash-boats, Navy PBV planes, Army 6-45's and L-5's, weasels, snowshoes, dog-teams.

The enlisted men are all hand-picked from Alaskan draftees at Ft. Richardson in order to provide the best possible woodsmen and dog-drivers. They work on a schedule resembling a fireman's: one week on alert, one week of training, one week of "comparative leisure" on odd jobs and such. There are quite a few Eskimos and Indians among them, and many half-breeds.

The rescue work varies. Around Nome, according to Major Klimetz, the Squadron spends a good deal of time hauling native fishermen who get caught out on the ice when it breaks off from shore.

Use Old Methods

When searching for wrecked aircraft, Major Klimetz serves as a pilot. But when the wreck once found, the rescue operations begin, Major Klimetz takes charge of the land operations. And that involves, usually, a change from airplane to dog-team, from the newest of modern transportation methods to the oldest—for undoubtedly men used dogs for pulling before they used horses for anything but food—and certainly the dog as a means of transportation antedated the invention of the wheel.

The Army has a breeding station of their own just off the post at Anchorage where three full-blooded wolves are kept for breeding purposes and mated with Alaskan malamutes and Siberian huskies. A touch of wolf blood is highly desirable in a sled dog to give it power, stamina, and better pulling qualities. Too much wolf blood, however, spoils a dog's character and makes him unreliable and undependable.

The sled dogs, said Major Klimetz, who expects to bring his own Siberian husky to Escanaba soon, are just dogs. Unless there is too much wolf blood in them, they respond as they are treated—abuse them and they grow sneaking and treacherous; baby them and they'll cheat the ears off you; treat them with honesty and consideration, and they'll give you back the dog's equivalent of honesty and consideration. A dog's response, however, is always conditioned by the character of the individual dog. For, as everyone knows, dogs vary in character traits, just as people do.

Returns to Alaska

So much does Major Klimetz like Alaska that he intends to return there, either as an Army man to his former post, or as a civilian flier for the Department of Interior's Fish and Wildlife Division.

Mrs. Klimetz, too, is an Alaskan convert. As Georgia Lorraine Miller, she left Rollo, Mo., to work with the Army as a civilian employee. She was employed at the Anchorage Air Base when she and Major Klimetz were married last June.

Zero, as a mathematical calculation, was employed by the Maya tribes of northern Columbus discovered America, before it was understood by any other people.

NO CHANGES IN RENT CONTROL

Schedules Remain Frozen As Of Jan. 1, 1946 Level

Rent control, which became effective in Delta county on Nov. 1, 1946, is still in effect and rents continue to be frozen as of the Jan. 1, 1946, level.

Some confusion has developed here regarding the rent control program. Not all of the landlords have yet filed registration forms as required by the rent control act. The deadline for filing the forms was Dec. 15, but the rent control office has not indicated what action will be taken, if any, to force the remainder to comply with the regulations.

Irish Girl Waits In Ohio For Sailor She Came To Marry

Columbus, O., (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Jane Orr Shepherd-Thompson, the bright-eyed Irish colleen, freed today from further deportation threats, said tonight she would not return to her Belfast home until she can see the American sailor she crossed the Atlantic ocean to marry.

During a court session when U. S. District Judge Mell G. Underwood placed her in the technical custody of the British Consul of Cleveland, a portion of a letter, said to have been written by her Navy sweetheart, Allen Kennison, of Springfield, O., was read to the court. It said in part:

"Take my word for it, there will be no wedding."

However, her attorney, Dale D. Rapp, reported tonight that Miss Shepherd-Thompson refused to accept as final the remarks contained in the letter and would wait for Kennison's return from China, expected in March.

The Irish girl was placed in Columbus city jail a week ago, pending deportation proceedings. She was charged with accepting a job as a waitress in violation of her visitor's visa.

Army Designs Plane For Reconnaissance And Emergency Use

Washington—A one-ton plane, one of the first designed especially for liaison work, is revealed by the Army here today. It will be known as the Boeing L-15A and can clear a 50-foot obstacle within 600 feet of take-off.

The L-15A will be used by the Army principally for reconnaissance, observation, aerial photography and emergency supply operations. It is an all-metal two-place plane, powered with a 125-horsepower Lycoming engine, has a normal cruising speed of 100 miles an hour, and can remain aloft two and a half hours at this speed.

Record Farm Output Called For In 1947; Wheat Goal Reduced

By OVID A. MARTIN
Washington (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Anderson today cut this year's wheat goal by 1,020,000 acres in a program which nevertheless called for another record farm output in 1947.

With the prospect that the winter wheat crop, already planted, will be a record one, the secretary urged that spring wheat farmers plant less of his grain and grow more flaxseed urgently needed for paints and other industrial products.

The planting goal for all crops recommended by Anderson after final check with the State Agricultural Councils calls for 356,893,000 acres compared with 345,111,000 for 1946 and with a pre-war average of 341,605,000.

On the whole, the goals are not greatly different from 1946 production.

With both President Truman and Anderson warning of possible new farm surpluses within a few years, the 1947 goals may be the largest recommended by the government for some time to come.

To encourage a shift from spring wheat to flaxseed needed for linseed oil, the government has increased its guarantee to growers of the latter crop from $4 to $6 a bushel, Minneapolis basis.

Anderson urged also the maintenance of a high level of production of livestock and livestock products. He recommended 90,000,000 pigs compared with 81,400,000 last year. The milk goal was set at 120,000,000 pounds compared with 119,000,000 in 1946. Slight reduction in eggs and turkeys were suggested.

Among the more important changes in crop goals was a recommended cotton acreage 23,100,000 compared with 18,316,000 last year. Supplies of cotton dwindled during the war.

Larger acreages of sugar beets, sugar cane, rye, soybeans, dry beans, barley, tame hay, grain sorghums and sweet potatoes were suggested. Smaller acreages were recommended for some types of tobacco, dry peas, corn, truck crops and peanuts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McEachron, Mrs. Otto Winkel and Mrs. Edith Christensen motored to Green Bay, Wis. last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Gray, Mrs. A. Demars, Mrs. Elmo Demars and son Clifford motored to Marquette Friday. Clifford was taken to the clinic for a checkup.

Mrs. Mabel Winkel entertained the Neighborhood Club on Wednesday when a delightful afternoon was spent and a delicious lunch enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Addie Williams was hostess when the Willing Workers Ladies' Aid society met at her home Thursday afternoon, Jan. 15th.

The Irish girl was placed in Columbus city jail a week ago, pending deportation proceedings. She was charged with accepting a job as a waitress in violation of her visitor's visa.

The L-15A will be used by the Army principally for reconnaissance, observation, aerial photography and emergency supply operations. It is an all-metal two-place plane, powered with a 125-horsepower Lycoming engine, has a normal cruising speed of 100 miles an hour, and can remain aloft two and a half hours at this speed.

A distinguishing feature of the new plane is its gondola, which houses the powerplant, pilot and observer, and takes up the entire fuselage. A long boom, extending to the rear of the top of the gondola, supports the plane's two rudder controls. With its high wings and boom, full visibility in all directions is available to the pilot and observer. The plane is so constructed that it can be quickly taken apart for shipment by truck.

A similar accident today involving a soft drink truck added 365 cases of pop at the same spot.

FORD OPENS UP 4 NEW PLANTS

Unit At St. Louis Will Employ 3,500, Turn Out 500 Cars Daily

Detroit, Jan. 19. (AP)—Appointment of managers to head new assembly plants of the Ford Motor Co. at Los Angeles, Metuchen, N. J., St. Louis and Atlanta, were announced at the company offices today.

A. R. Davis, present Kansas City plant manager, will head the new Lincoln-Mercury assembly plant at Los Angeles; he will be replaced by R. N. Cocks, present Kansas City plant superintendent.

P. S. Mabie, now plant manager at the Ford Edgewater, N. J. plant, will head the Lincoln-Mercury plant at Metuchen, N. J. His successor at Edgewater will be named later.

Henry C. Dorsey, at present a traveling production supervisor, will become manager of the new Ford plant at Atlanta, Ga.

The four new assembly plants are part of the big Ford expansion program. Largest of the new units will be the St. Louis assembly branch with a capacity of 500 Lincoln and Mercury cars daily and providing employment for 3,500 workers.

Top Quality Beef Continues Scarce
BY OVID A. MARTIN
Washington, (AP)—Consumer supplies of top quality beef may continue relatively scarce during the next few months despite an increase in cattle feeding operations and marketing.

The Agriculture Department said that reports from feeders indicate that cattle will be fed for shorter periods this year than last. The percentage is to be marketed before May 1, is estimated at 56 per cent of the total, as compared with 53 per cent a year ago.

If these short feedings intentions are carried out, the number of well-finished—that is top quality—cattle on major markets during the next few months will continue relatively small. Generally speaking, the longer-fed cattle produce better quality meat, and larger animals.

Senate Group After Secret Report On War Mobilization
Washington, Jan. 16. (AP)—Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) told reporters today that the special Senate war investigating committee planned to ask President Truman for a secret "war mobilization" report which the late President Roosevelt "refused" Mr. Truman when he was a senator.

President Truman formerly headed the war inquiry group. Brewster said that the "secret report" was one prepared by Edward R. Stettinius Jr., former secretary of state, and outlined detailed war mobilization plans which Brewster said "were not followed."

Brewster recalled that when Mr. Truman was head of the committee it found the war effort had "been delayed from a year to 18 months" by failure to follow the mobilization plan.

"Senator Truman requested it of President Roosevelt and he refused," Brewster said, adding that he did not know whether Mr. Truman as president would take a different view than he had as senator.

Two Injured At Crossing Crash

Ishpeming—Dominic Sarvello, 119 West Division street, suffered a possible fractured nose and his son, Bruno, who resides at 102 Graham street, a leg cut when the car driven by the former collided with the locomotive of a Chicago and North Western passenger train at the West Division street crossing at 6:20 Wednesday evening.

The Sarvellos were going west on Division street and struck the side of the locomotive which, according to police, Mr. Sarvello did not see until it was too late to stop his car.

The passenger train was pulling out of the roundhouse on its way to the Ishpeming station when the accident occurred. The front end of the Sarvello automobile was smashed. Mr. Sarvello and his son were treated in the Ishpeming hospital.

The railway crew on the 6:30 passenger train Wednesday night included C. Lloyd, engineer; Nicholas Waggoner, fireman; J. Murray, conductor, and Murray Boyle, brakeman, all residents of Escanaba.

Farmers Cut Down On Turkey Growing
Washington—Faced with prospects of lower prices and increased competition from red meats, farmers plan to produce 16 per cent fewer turkeys this year, the Agriculture Department reported today.

A department survey indicates a crop of about 34,500,000 head compared with 41,000,000 last year and with the record of 45,000,000 in 1945.

Rotary Program—The Escanaba Rotary club at its Monday noon meeting in the Delta hotel will hear Major Emil Larsen of the Veterans Administration office in Escanaba speak on the VA program in the Upper Peninsula.

Is Promoted — Robert Leslie Kallin, who is with the U. S. Coast Guards, stationed on the cutter "Balsam" at San Francisco at present, has been promoted from the rank of Ensign to Lieutenant Junior Grade. Lt. Kallin, a graduate of Escanaba high school, class of 1938, is a son of Mrs. Roger W. Campbell, Lake Shore Drive.

Lions Meeting — Atty. Glenn Jackson of Gladstone will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Escanaba Lions club Monday at the Sherman Hotel. A discussion of the Golden Gloves boxing tournament also is scheduled.

Never let laces become badly soiled. If you should get a stubborn spot on your lace, use a baby's hair brush soft enough to scrub it with safety.

Try giving brass door knockers a coat of wax. There will be less polishing needed as the wax forms a protective coat which keeps off tarnish for some time.

LEAVING FOR AUSTRALIA — Mrs. Philip Burton, of Astoria, Long Island, the former Dorothy Jensen, of this city, and a daughter of Mrs. John McMartin of 402 South 18th street, is a member of a group of American entertainers who are sailing from San Francisco on Jan. 31 aboard the S. S. Marine Phoenix, for Australia and New Zealand. Mrs. Burton and her husband, who also is a member of the group, are leaving New York Tuesday, and enroute to San Francisco will stop in Coshen, Ind., for a family reunion which will be attended by Mrs. McMartin of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jensen and daughters, Diane and Marilyn, and Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Yoder, daughter, Barbara, and son, David, of Goshen.

District Mission Meeting
At Bethany Church Monday

The northern Green Bay district of the Evangelical Lutheran church is holding its annual mission meeting in Bethany Lutheran church in Escanaba, on Monday.

Pastors of the district will hold a business meeting in the morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the Missionary Society will hold its monthly meeting in connection with the mission. New York—(AP)—Biologically, a man is said to do 90 percent of his growing before birth, another nine percent before he's 20, and one percent the entire remainder of his life.

It's this one percent, or perhaps a fraction of it, that remains one of the comparatively great mysteries of modern science—a void in man's knowledge which only now, with the end of wartime distractions, is bringing intensified studies into the real causes of longevity.

Lots of persons, especially old ones, have theories about longevity.

At 107, a woman in the mid-west attributed her long life to wearing two petticoats. A South African, who said he was 116, gave the formula as honey, corn and plenty of fresh air. In New England, a woman allowed as how she had lived to 105 because of smoking her pipe.

The old folks are more positive than scientists. Science has no sure-fire set of rules and regulations. Conclusive statements about the causes of longevity require conclusive evidence. Such proof is largely lacking, primarily because the problem needs controlled experiments with humans over long periods of time.

But there are theories, eugenists emphasize inheritance. Sociologists and many physicians favor environment. Nutrition experts call attention to diet and psychologists emphasize mental outlook.

Adding up all the viewpoints, a person seeking advice on how to live long might get this composite set of hints of varying value:

1. It would be nice if you could have picked your parents. Insurance company statistics show that where the parents and grandparents lived long, the children tend to enjoy longevity.

2. Avoid many of the childhood ailments, especially those like rheumatic fever which may leave their mark in later life.

3. Try not to belong to a low social-economic group. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. reports a study made in 10 states among male workers ranging from 15 to 64. The study showed that seven out of 1,000 professional men could be expected to die within a year while 13.1 out of 1,000 unskilled workers could be expected to die within a year. The mortality rate in the lowest group was almost double that of the highest.

4. Live moderately in all things—work, play, eating, drinking, smoking and especially worrying. The human heart has enough to do without you adding to its work. For example, even while its owner is resting, the average normal heart pumps 11 to 22 pounds of blood per minute, according to Dr. Edward J. Steiglitz, formerly attached to the U. S. Health Service.

5. Don't remain bored for too long and try to laugh a lot. The late Dr. Alexander A. Bogomolets of Russia (more about his serum later) endorsed the findings of an earlier physiologist, Christoph Hufeland:

"Fear is a continuous spasm. It contracts all the capillaries. Fear brings about all the symptoms . . . of a slow-acting deadly poison and, consequently tends to shorten life . . . the bored man begins to yawn. This shows that the blood's passage through the lungs is encumbered.

"Not a single lazy man ever reached old age. Old age is reached only by those who lead a busy life.

"Of all man's functions that affect body and soul together, laughter is the healthiest. Laughter aids digestion, circulation, sweating and has a refreshing effect on the strength of all the organs.

6. Don't overeat, don't get overweight. Experiments with rats show that where the diet was controlled rats lived much longer than their brethren who were allowed to eat as much as they liked.

Insurance studies indicate that the weight range for people at 25 is the desirable one to maintain in later life. In his book, "The Second Forty Years," Dr. Steiglitz says that of 10 fat men at 30, six will survive to 60; three to 70 and perhaps one to 80. Of 10 lean men, he said, eight will reach 60, five will reach 70 and three will live to 80.

From an overall health point of view, he says, if health can be conserved from the years between 40 and 60, the likelihood of long disability and uselessness from chronic illness after that will be small.

Despite comparative ignorance of the real, positive causes of longevity, people are living longer. In the Roman Empire, the average life expectancy was 23 years. In 1900, in the United States, it was 47. Now it's almost 65.

In a seemingly frenzied and complicated era of international tangles, supersonic speeds and atom bombs, fears have arisen that the quickened pace of modern living might lead to a mass breakdown. But statistics tell another story.

Metropolitan Life figures show that the death rate of the aged—heart, arteries and kidneys (cancer and diseases of the organs rank second)—has dropped almost 30 percent (at ages of 1 to 74) from the period of 1911-15 to 1940-44. The death rate from these causes in the 45-75 age group, dropped by one-fifth among white men and by a third among white women.

Life spans vary widely in the animal kingdom, but most scientists agree that man should be good for 100 years or more.

There have been scattered, completely unverified reports of humans living well over a century: a Norwegian who lived to 160 and left an assortment of progeny from nine to 103 years old; and a Dane who lived to 146 after fighting in four wars, the last at 84, and marrying at 111 a woman of 60, whom he survived.

Such reports did not seem incredible to Dr. Bogomolets, who died this year at 85. He claimed that humans normally should be able to live 150 years, but he did not claim, as was reported, that his anti-reticular cytotoxic serum, alone, would do the trick. He wrote in his book "Prolongation of Life":

"If it should prove that the small doses of the . . . serum, on repeated introduction into the body, are able to prevent untimely sclerosis of the reticulo-endothelial system (blood vessels, vital organs, glands, membranes and other connective tissues), this serum will be a very valuable aid in the struggle for prolongation of life."

Assuming the elimination of disease, you can arrive at some fantastic and intriguing statistics. For example, Dr. H. S. Simms of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, who is working on problems of longevity, points out that at the age of 10 there is one death among 1,600 children per year.

If, he says—and the "if" is a big one—the same low mortality rate could be maintained throughout the entire life span, then half the population could expect to live 800 years.

Putting it another way, Columbus, after discovering America, could have returned to watch it grow for 560 years and still have three centuries to plan for, assuming, of course, he got out of Queen Isabella's doghouse.

Grand Marais—A new ice rink is under construction here and although the ice has not yet reached top form it is being used nightly by dozens of youngsters. The rink is located in front of The Spot on the lake shore and is well lighted. Children under 12 are allowed on the rink any time until 9 p. m. and all skating is over at approximately 10:30 p. m. to facilitate flooding the rink.

Robins Appear

Many persons have reported seeing robins here this month. Their presence is probably due to the heavy crop of mountain ash berries left on the trees this year. The grosbeaks have appeared in flocks and have stripped the trees of berries however.

Several people have set out feeding trays and the robins have been noticed among the birds feeding, indicating that they are benefiting from the food placed out to aid them.

Chicago Fur Dealer Happiest In Alaska With His Dog Team

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Highland Park, Ill.—(AP)—Every

winter, when his shuddering neighbors are flocking to the sunny South, Martin Victor heads toward the Arctic Circle. He has made this seemingly wrong-way trip 22 times in the last 24 years. Twice he has ventured in the other direction—to Mexico and to Florida—but he prefers Alaska.

"It's a novelty to bask in the sun," he concedes, without much warmth. "But when I get up north, I'm really happy. It's a vigorous life. I lose 20 pounds and come back in fine shape."

Victor, a muscular man of 42 who operates a fur store in this plush Chicago suburb, combines business with a shivery sort of pleasure on his annual excursions. He usually rides air lines to Fort Yukon, hires a plane, loads his dog team, sled and supplies aboard, and sets out for a trap line. The bush pilot deposits him on a snowy trail and, from there on, he is more or less on his own.

Mushing along, he buys pelts from trappers and at trading posts in Indian and Eskimo villages. The bush pilot returns periodically with more food, flies his fare to a new territory, and carries the accumulated fur cargo back to Fort Yukon.

As Victor talks, he conjures up a pretty picture of a well-upholstered fellow trotting in the wake of his dogs, or riding on the sled and munching a strip of smoked salmon as he glides merrily across the white emptiness. But there are certain chilling contingencies.

"I lost all my toe nails three times because of freezing," he recalls. "If you freeze your feet, you have to put them in a bucket of kerosene heated to blood temperature. You have to keep rubbing your gloves over your face, too. When you can't feel it, it's freezing. You thaw out your ears by holding your hands over them."

The weather dictates the attire of the day. The basic setup includes long silk underwear topped by woolen longies, silk socks inside woolen hose, breeches or ski trousers, a woolen shirt, fur mukluks, and knitted woolen mittens under long moose leather gloves.

When it's 40 below or less frigid, Victor wears a fur-trimmed, lined canvas parka. When it's windy or colder, he shrugs into a fur parka. When the temperature drops to 65 below or lower, he pays an Indian squaw $2 to wrap his feet and lower legs in an insulating layer of flat grass.

"When it's 25 below or warmer, I never use a parka," Victor says. "The greatest danger is in overdriving. If you overdrive, you start perspiring, and you have no way to throw off the heat and moisture. So you get wet and freeze."

Besides food for himself and his malemates, Victor carries a couple of guns for shooting rabbits or partridge to supplement his rations. He also fetches along a note book—for recording, phonetically, the various native dialects. "You travel 100 miles," he explains, "and you have to learn a new lingo."

During treks that have taken him as far as 70 miles north of the Arctic Circle, Victor has reduced the problem of camping out to a simple routine. He chains the dogs to different trees, puts up a tarpaulin lean-to, gathers wood, builds a roaring fire, digs down 18 inches for fine granulated snow, and brews tea. Frequently, however, he finds a bunk in a lonely hut.

"You never pass by a cabin without stopping in for a cup of coffee," he says. "You never pass anybody on the trail without stopping to talk. That's an insult in Alaska."

Victor has learned much of the lore of the far north, but one phenomenon is beyond his comprehension. He has purchased furs in one isolated village, whisked across 40 miles of fresh, unmarked snow to the next settlement, and found that news of the price he paid at the first stop had preceded him.

Victor suggests that knocking around this winter wonderland would be a fine, health-building vacation for anybody who could stand the gaff. Others can seek

Each Of Us May Get 155 Pounds Of Meat

BY LAWRENCE N. ELDRED

Chicago (AP)—A potentially much higher production of meat to feed a hungry nation and world in 1947, as compared with 1946, today rests primarily on the availability of last year's corn crop.

Less corn would mean less meat.

The United States Department of Agriculture estimates this year's total meat will be drawn from a pig crop of about 83,000,000 head, a lamb crop of some 26,000,000 head, and an estimated total slaughter of 35,000,000 cattle and calves.

The previous year's totals were about 86,000,000 pigs saved, 28,000,000 lambs cropped and about 32,000,000 head of cattle and calves slaughtered.

The result this year will be a predicted 150 to 155 pounds of meat for each person in the United States, exports considered, compared with an approximate 126 pounds apiece last year.

The Department's annual summary placed the total 1946 corn crop at 3,287,927,000 bushels, compared with the previous year's 2,880,933,000 bushels. Last year's corn production was a record high.

Turning that corn into meat will be a major part of the farmer's business this year. His hogs and cattle bow to none when it comes to efficiency in converting low-type food into high.

A steer can take grass, raw corn or silage, which are relatively indigestible to a human being, and after processing them through his four stomachs derive beef, which is highly desirable in the human diet.

The hog does a similarly good job of turning corn into pork.

About eight pounds of corn becomes a pound of pork or 12 pounds of corn a pound of beef. Approximately 90 per cent of the corn grown in the United States becomes feed for livestock, half of it going to hogs.

So it is that, but for plenty of corn being available, beefsteaks and pork chops would not be nearly so popular. Their cost would put them out of the reach of most families.

Along with contributing low-cost meat, corn, probably as much as any one product, built our nation. It has saved many other nations from starvation, and twice in this century it saved the world in wartime.

Yet at one time in the dim centuries before Christ corn was a wild little grass growing in the lowlands of northern South America. The Arawakan Indians saw possibilities in it, tamed it through long centuries of trial and error cultivation, and from then on it traveled far.

In Arawakan it was called "Ma-hiz" which became our word maize to distinguish the grain from the European use of "corn" to cover all food grains.

In the last decade a new, hybrid seed-corn industry has sprung up and flourished.

Up to 1935 virtually all corn raised in Iowa, the leading corn-producing state, was of the old varieties. Ten years later practically all the corn was from the new hybrids.

These brought about the record wartime and postwar crops and because the stalks stood straight and firm, farmers could use mechanical combine harvesters to replace the farm boys who went off to war.

Through the higher yields and the proportionately smaller amount of manpower needed, it has been estimated 150,000,000 hours of labor were saved annually during World War II.

Perhaps in the hurly-burly of today close relatives of maize—teosinte and tripsacum, which still grow wild in Mexico and Central America—may be passed over as potential world-savers, but the ancient squaws knew what they were about, and because of them the world will be enabled to eat better than it has been.

New Drugs Check Marrow Disease

Chicago—The excruciating pain of multiple myeloma is relieved and the course of this malignant bone marrow disease is arrested by treatment with two relatively new drugs and a low protein diet, Dr. I. Snapper of Mount Sinai Hospital, New York, reports in the forthcoming issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association here.

The treatment does not cure the disease, Dr. Snapper emphasizes. It is temporarily checked in its development. This occurs even in cases in which the disease has been rapidly getting worse before the treatment is started.

The two drugs Dr. Snapper has used are Stilbamidine and Pentamidine. Drugs of this type, which are diamidine compounds not containing antimony, have been successfully used since 1939 to treat the tropical disease, kala-azar. Before their development, antimony compounds were used for kala-azar and for multiple myeloma, leukemia, and Hodgkin's disease. The reason for using the same drugs for these different illnesses was that in all of them there may be an increase in the amount of a protein called globulin in the blood serum.

ALGER BIRTHS ON INCREASE

No Maternal Deaths In County For Two Years

Munising—There were 253 live births, 24.88 per 1,000 population, in Alger county in 1946 according to the Alger-Schoolcraft county health department tentative figure issued yesterday.

No maternal deaths occurred for the past two years.

The comparative figures for 1946 and 1945, based on 1940 census, are as follows.

Alger 1946	Alger 1945
Live births	253 194
Still births	14 11
Born in hospital	170 132
Born in homes	46 62
Delivered by physicians	191 264
Delivered by others	3 3
Infant deaths, 1946, 15 (rate 77.3 per 1,000 live births)
Infant deaths, 1945, 5 (rate 15.8 per 1,000 live births)

The average infant death rate for the state for the past five years has been 37.64 per 1,000 live births, it was stated.

Alger Supervisors Approve Resolutions

Munising—The Alger county board of supervisors at their meeting held last week approved two resolutions to be sent to the Michigan State legislature showing their approval of bills to be acted on at the present session of the legislature.

Act No. 150 which imposes a tax of ten percent on the sale of certain alcoholic liquor, was unanimously approved and the board of supervisors voted to recommend and advise the continuance of this act beyond the effective date by appropriate action of the 1947 legislature by either re-enacting the act or passing a similar one to take care of the situation beyond May 14, 1947 when it expires.

The tax is distributed quarterly to the several counties, incorporated villages and cities of Michigan for maintenance and improvement of roads.

The other resolution approved by the local county board of supervisors, requests that the legislative committee of Michigan State Association of county clerks and the legislative committee of Michigan State Association of

Harry's Quintet Plays Soo Five Here Sunday Night

Munising—Harry's Sinclair basketball five will renew an old standing rivalry when they meet with the Soo Amvets, former Soo Merchants team, at the Mather high school gym on Sunday, January 19.

Play between the two teams had been discontinued during the war and the game Sunday will be the first clash since the revival. Most of the original members of both teams are still playing and as contests in the past had always been close, the game here today should be a thriller.

Both teams were the ones that played off for the Gold Medal Tournament championship in 1941 with Harry's quintet taking the title, scoring 43 to the Sault's 38 points.

Two boxing bouts will be staged during half time at Sunday's game, it has been announced.

county clerks and the legislative committee of Michigan State Association of Supervisors investigate into the matter of increasing or adjusting fees collected by county clerks.

The reason stated for the investigation is based on the fact that there never has been any increase or adjustment in these fees in the history of the state and it is figured such fees are either too low or are inconsistent with the object for which the fee is being collected.

The resolution asks that the state legislature make such adjustment in these fees as they deem just and adequate.

FIRE CHIEF MAKES REPORT

Volunteer Firemen Were Paid $1,690 In Wages

Munising—It cost Munising taxpayers $1,690 to send the volunteer firemen on the various fires, false alarms, etc., during 1946 in wages alone, the annual report of Fire Chief George M. MacKenzie, made to the city commissioners the past week revealed.

Fire damage to buildings totaled $98.

The following detailed report of activities was made:

DICKEY RETURNS TO LITTLE ROCK

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 18 (AP)—Bill Dickey, who served a short term at the helm of the New York Yankees last year, signed a one-year contract today as player-manager of the Little Rock Travelers of the Southern Association, with whom he began his baseball career 22 years ago.

Neither Dickey nor Traveler business manager Ray Winder would disclose salary terms involved, but Winder indicated "it cost us plenty" for the slugging catcher.

Until today Dickey had declined to give any hint as to his future plans. Following less than a season's tenure as manager, he quit the Yankees last August without announcing his reasons and since then has spent most of his time with his favorite hobby—hunting.

Dickey explained his action of signing with the Travelers in the face of possible major league offers by pointing out that Little Rock was his home and that he was tired of living away from it.

"In 22 years of baseball, I've been away from home most of the time," he said. "In this job, I'll be home except when we're playing on the road."

Dickey, who is married and has a 13-year-old daughter, Lorraine, is a native of Bastrop, La., but has made his home at Little Rock since he broke into organized ball here in 1925.

The hard-hitting receiver, who throws right and bats left, joined the Yankees in 1928 and remained with them—except for the two wartime seasons he was in service—until last summer's break-up, which never was explained. During that time he established records galore and played in eight World Series and seven All-Star games.

DRAMA CLUB

Munising—The Drama Club will meet Monday evening at eight o'clock in the Beach Inn lounge room.

Dr. E. F. Brenner, director of the Alger-Schoolcraft health department, will be the guest speaker.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Anna Deagon and Mrs. V. A. Floria. All members are urged to attend and may bring guests.

FIRE CALL

Munising—The Munising volunteer fire department was called to the Tannery location Saturday morning as a result of a fire which started in a pile of wood chips and old rubbish.

The fire was along the lake shore to the rear of the Vonskowsky residence.

Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze, it was reported.

Plans Revival
Services Here

The Rev. D. A. MacPhee, pastor of the Manistique Free Methodist church, located at the corner of Deer and Second streets, announces a series of revival services beginning on January 20 and continuing on through February 2. The services will start each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Rev. Glenn Williamson, of Covington, Okla., who will conduct the services, is a successful evangelist and has a message for all ages. Young folks are especially attracted to him.

His "Story Hour" conducted especially for children will be a special feature in this series. These have proven to be very popular with the children and very effective in bringing the Gospel message to them.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Dartball League
Adopts New Rules

A meeting was held Thursday evening, Jan. 16, at the fire hall of players and captains of the league. Several matters concerning the operation of the league were decided upon and the following decisions were made:

For the balance of the season, the schedule is drawn up whereby each team will play one game at their own place and a return game at their opponent's place.

If any team does not show up when previously arranged by the captains, the team that doesn't appear forfeits three games.

All games which cannot be played on Monday or Tuesday nights will have to be played some night during that week.

Any player stepping over the foul line is automatically declared out.

The members attending this meeting decided that the averages of each player's ability will be determined by point system average. Any questions on this, players can contact their captains as to the system of figuring averages.

Plans are being made to close the dartball season with a dinner. The date and place will be decided upon sometime in March.

Team standings, round one:

Philathea Class
Of First Baptist
Is Entertained

The Philathea Class of the First Baptist church held its regular meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hewitt. Mrs. Katherine Secore, Mrs. Christina Lindberg and Mrs. Inogene Gould were assisting hostesses. Eighteen members responded to the roll call and one new member, Mrs. Francis McLean, was added to the membership.

After the business meeting an evening of games and group singing was enjoyed.

The following guests were present: Miss Amelia Ness, Mrs. Mary Leonard, Mrs. Ellsworth Curran, Mrs. Joseph Carlson, Miss Ruth Sandberg, Mrs. Mina Ewald, Mrs. Mauritz Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peterson, Harry Secore, E. T. King and Rev. J. D. B. Adams.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses at the close of the services.

BANK DEPOSITS

Assets And Deposits Of State Savings Bank
Break Record

Assets and deposits of the State Savings Bank reached an all time high in 1946 it was revealed by William J. Shinar, president, at the annual meeting of that organization held recently. Deposits at the year's end had reached the sum total of $2,388,200.17, the report showed.

At the meeting stockholders elected the following directors for the ensuing year: G. H. Burrell, August Carlson, Frank Hartman, G. S. Johnson and William J. Shinar. Officers of the bank are: Wm. J. Shinar, president; G. S. Johnson, vice president; H. K. Bundy, cashier; Leonard Males and Ann Gorsche, assistant cashiers.

The State Savings Bank, organized in 1917 with a capital of $25,000 and a surplus of $5,000 now has a capital structure of over $150,000, represented by $50,000 common stock, $50,000 surplus and $55,000 undivided profits and reserves. Mr. Shinar reported a large increase in loans made by the bank during the past year and states that he believes that they should continue to increase as the readjustment to normal business procedure progresses.

The bank commenced business on July 7, 1917, and on July 7 this year will have completed 30 years of corporate existence. Stockholders voted a 30 year extension.

Speed Skaters To Be Given The Know
How At Stadium

Young people wishing to acquire the finer points in speed skating will have a good opportunity to learn from an expert if they will be present at the stadium rink this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Renold Anderson, who enjoys a high rating as a speed skater will be present at that time to demonstrate methods and advice to any who may be interested.

It is especially desired by the Recreation Board that those who plan on participating in the ice carnival on February 22 and 23 be present.

Incidentally, it may be added that the rink is in perfect condition for the best kind of skating.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Manistique-Schoolcraft Chamber of Commerce someone presented a somewhat peculiar suggestion. This particular member said that he would like to see a few park benches placed at vantage points in the city where, on warm summer days, people who were so inclined could sit at ease and watch the passing show.

The member said that a tourist passing through the city last summer, had encountered car

Gerald F. Bush, warden at the State House of Correction and Branch Prison at Marquette, will speak at Tuesday's meeting of the Manistique Women's Club to be held at Lakeside school.

Warden Bush has not announced the topic on which he will speak but talks informally on those aspects of crime and its treatment which will most interest his particular audience group.

As a penologist he has a nationwide reputation, having made this particular science a life work. Prior to assuming his position as warden at Marquette, he was a member of the board of parole. He comes highly recommended as an interesting and informative speaker.

Miss Betty Golat will sing at this meeting.

trouble which necessitated an extended wait and he and his wife (they were an elderly couple) had found, to their annoyance, that facilities of that sort were entirely lacking in Manistique.

The directors came to view this matter in a new light. Heretofore they had concurred in the generally accepted view that the placing of benches along Main street would be an invitation to the Community's loafers to gossip and mess up the sidewalks with whittlings.

But when this subject was broached and enlarged upon the other evening they found that it wasn't as amusing and as trivial as they had at first supposed.

They began to wonder just how a stranded wayfarer—a stranger to the community—would while away a few hours. What would such a person tell his friends about Manistique? It might not be flattering. You know what folks say about being stranded at Trout Lake. The directors came to the conclusion that it was a serious matter and that it should be attended to as soon as the tourist season opens. There will probably be some benches at the court house square and some at Triangle Park. They also deplored the fact that where the Triangle park was landscaped two beautiful shade trees were destroyed in order to impart a smart "metropolitan affect."

We believe that the public in general will agree with the directors that a concession to leisure of this sort will not be amiss. It is true that the sight of a few old gentlemen sitting in the shade discussing politics or how to treat a horse for bog spavin does impart a rustic atmosphere to the surroundings, but such "rustic" scenes are far more cheerful than that strictly "metropolitan" sight one sees so often in Chicago, Detroit or Milwaukee—dispirited old men looking out of the window of some second or third rate hotel.

Perhaps that unknown passing wayfarer, in his search for a comfortable place in which to loaf, did the community a good turn.

In a recent panel discussion of community life in Manistique we heard a remark made and accepted as a fact to which we take definite exception. It was to the effect that the tendency toward irresponsible malicious mischief on the part of young people is general. We claim this to be utterly untrue—untrue because it is so obviously untrue in Manistique.

We say it without fear of contradiction that roughneck youngsters in Manistique are decidedly in the minority—so much in the minority, in fact, that they could be squelched if the community made up its mind not to stand for any more of their foolishness.

We recall and most of you will recall, what was said when the Youth Center first opened up. We heard people say and you heard people say, "They can never make a go of it. They'll wreck the place in a couple of nights." And "they" pretty nearly did just that. They wiped ping pong balls, they broke pool cues, they roughhoused and messed up the place. The center had to be closed. It was opened again with the understanding that such things would not be tolerated.

Since that time the place has been orderly, the youngsters have been well behaved and they've

Every-Day Economics Of Food Inflation Overshadow Politics For Franco's Spain

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

Lisbon, Portugal—(NEA)—For the little people of Spain, the every-day economics of food, inflation and black market are much weightier problems today than the international political issues tossed back and forth between Spain's Franco and the United Nations.

Outward signs of revolt are scarce. But so are the outward signs of either gaiety or freedom. And after talking with the Spaniards in the cities and the fields, with bank clerks and farmers, you cannot miss the underlying of unrest and fear of the future that runs deep beneath the surface of tranquility and order.

If you have been in Spain before, you will miss the swarms of beggars who used to beset pedestrians at every turn. Franco has forbidden begging in the streets, and the beggars obey.

He has made pronouncements against the black market and inflation, too, but the result has been far different. In Spain's thriving black market, according to the have-nots, who are legion, the biggest operators are members of Spain's Civil Service. And every Spaniard you talk to is convinced that the 100 per cent boost in the cost of living in the past nine months is a direct result of the government's commodity price-fixing at 50 per cent or more below actual cost of production.

Coming to Spain from a rationed, lean continent beyond the Pyrenees, your eyes widen at the incredible number of full store windows offering shoes, gloves, leather goods, woolens, shirts, silk ties, perfumery, cosmetics, candy, and pastries smothered in fresh whipped-cream. All these are unrationed, and unlimited in quantity.

But to enjoy them, you need money, and plenty of it, far more than the working-class Spaniard can accumulate at wages of from $1.25 to $1.50 a day.

A three-course meal in a first-class hotel or restaurant costs from $6 to $10, including a general service charge of 12 per cent and a municipal tax of 10 per cent. Gloves and shoes are about at U.S. levels—$4 for a pair of handmade gloves, $7 to $14 for shoes. A man's white shirt is $7, nylons are $9 or $10. American cigarettes are 80 cents a pack.

Luxury hotels and restaurants are crowded, but like the luxurious American and French ones that abound in Madrid's streets, they are not so expensive. Most of the people in the picture are high officials in the Franco administration or black market operators.

Franco's active supporters, although they represent only a fraction of the population, have position and means. They are the privileged who are waxing fat on the regime—Falangists and military, as well as industrialists and businessmen who are convinced a change for a more liberal form of government would upset the pleasant way of life which they manage to lead.

The surface signs of totalitarianism are hardly more than the countless uniforms—soldiers, armed police, civil guard, and municipal police—and the portrait of Franco—El Caudillo—that is in every public establishment.

There are deeper signs in the hunger that haunts the mass of Spain's people. The fear of the Secret Police that has hung over them since Franco's rise to power does not prevent many Spaniards from criticizing their government, from making grim little jokes about the incredible number of bureaucrats, the inefficiency and the red tape.

But nowhere, among the little people, can you find enthusiasm for any movement that would plunge Spain into another revolution. Their memories of the Civil War are too vivid for them to cheer proposals from the outside world for overthrow of the government.

Their personal problem is economic, and they seem to feel that a solution to that problem would end much of the urgency of the political situation.

The gauge of a stocking refers to the number of needles used to knit an inch and a half; the denier of the stocking refers to the thickness of each thread.

The United States has consumed 60 percent of the petroleum produced in the world since 1901.

To some 16 million Siamese, Siam is known as Muang Thai, meaning "Land of the Free."

Spain's Franco and admirers: He outlawed begging . . . but not the black market, inflation, and hunger.

Legion Auxiliary

A regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Unit No. 83, was held Thursday evening in the Legion hall.

During the business session it was decided to start a fund for the new hospital, either for the building or to furnish a room. A pay-to-play card party will be given to start the fund. The committee in charge will be: Monola Weber, Martha Malloch, Grace McLaughlin and Nellie Ott. Several new members were admitted to the unit. Delegates elected to attend the mid-winter conference to be held in Escanaba on January 24, 25 and 26, were Lottie Weber, delegate at large, Violet Pavlov, Grace McLaughlin and Vivian Hahne. Alternates are: Nellie Anderson, Hedwig Cooper and Lalla Martin.

Games were played following the session with awards going to Katherine Kefauver, high in five hundred, and Audrey Malloch, low. In other games Harriet Davern received high.

Refreshments were served later by the following committee: Grace McLaughlin, Nellie Ott and Freda Smith. The next meeting will be held February 6 with Vivian Hahne, Lillian Lindberg and Nellie Anderson as hostesses.

Pvt. Mayne Edwin Bashore has been transferred from San Antonio, Tex., to Camp Kilmer, N. J., according to word received here. He expects to go overseas soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rahberger have left for their home in Monroe, Wis., following a visit here with Mr. and Mrs. Omer Schuster and Miss Evelyn Schuster. The Rahbergers have been at various points in the Upper Peninsula on their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Allen and daughter, Donna, of Soap Lake, Wash., are guests at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Johnson, Thompson.

Harry Durno Gets 29 Cribbage Hand

There was almost as much excitement as a three alarm fire at the fire station club rooms Friday evening. Harry Durno and Ray McCahey were playing a quiet game of cribbage and the game was due to close with the next hand with Harry trailing by about twenty points. Then Ray dished him a hand that enabled him to retain three fives and the jack of diamonds. And he cut the five of diamonds.

The rest, of course, was "duck soup."

GET BIDS ON LIGHT SYSTEMS

Athletic Field, Street Lights Are Being Considered

Bids for the furnishing of lighting equipment for the Marble Athletic Field and for new lighting fixtures for Delta avenue have been received by city authorities from the Westinghouse Electric Co.

Open type lights for the athletic field for a combination softball field-gridiron setup would cost $1,792.82. Enclosed floods for the same setup would cost $2,635.22.

The open type light has been recommended for use by the company.

This is for the material only. Poles and labor of erection is to be furnished locally. There has been no action by the recreation board.

City Manager H. J. Henrikson said that Nick Sigan, local jobber, had offered to furnish poles for the project.

On the street lighting proposal, the company submitted a bid of $3,624.42 for new mercury vapor lamps and fixtures for Delta avenue from the east side of Sixth street to the west side of Eleventh street.

Bids from other manufacturers of similar type equipment are expected and while city commissioners have discussed the matter informally others bids are awaited before definite action is taken.

Delta avenue would have to be rewired with heavier gauge wire to carry the necessary electric load for the new type lamps, it was stated.

Puck Teams In Spotlight At Escanaba Indoor Rink Today At 2:30

Hank Greenberg Goes To Pittsburgh Pirates For Big Lump Of Cash

Pittsburgh, Jan. 18 (P) — The Pittsburgh Pirates announced today they had purchased Hank Greenberg, mighty Detroit Tiger batsman, for an undisclosed "sizeable sum" and Manager Billy Herman said the American league star likely would play in the Bucs' outfield this year.

The seven other American league clubs had to waive on the services of the home run king and no other players were involved in the deal. Baseball writer Chilly Doyle of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph quoted "one reliable report" as saying the purchase price was $40,000.

Roy Hamey, Pirate general manager, hailed the transaction with jubilation. He declared: "It goes without saying that we were elated over our final success in actually acquiring the services of this grand player."

In Detroit, Tiger owner Walter O. Briggs hinted sale of the slugger might have been influenced by a recent Greenberg interview appearing in "The Sporting News" in which Hank was quoted as saying he would prefer finishing his career in New York.

Hamey, announcing the purchase of one of baseball's highest paid players, said the Pirates landed him after days of negotiating between Frank McKenney, president of the Pittsburgh club, and Billy Evans, new general manager of the Tigers.

Hamey declined to say what the Pirates paid for the man who hit 44 home runs last year to lead both leagues in circuit swats, but said it was a "sizeable sum" of cash. Before the deal could be completed, the other American league clubs had to waive on the services of the first baseman-outfielder.

Greenberg, who has pounded out 311 homers in his major league career, five of them in World Series competition, started out with the Tigers in 1933 as a first baseman. But in 1940 Manager Del Baker caused something of a sensation when he switched the big boy to the outfield.

Billy Herman, new manager of the Pirates, will say what position the 36-year old star will play with his new club, according to McKinney.

CHANGE OF SCENERY

Detroit, Jan. 18 (P) — Owner Walter O. Briggs of the Detroit Tigers hinted today that the sale of Slugger Hank Greenberg to the Pittsburgh Pirates might have been influenced by national publicity of a week ago suggesting that Greenberg might like to finish his major league career in his native New York city with the Yankees.

While not specifying that the Bronx beller's outright sale to the Pirates was an outgrowth of an interview in "The Sporting News", in which it was hinted that Hank would ask a salary of $75,000 for 1947 and would prefer to finish his career in a Yankee uniform, Briggs said in a statement "in the light of recent happenings, it was felt that a change of scenery might prove highly beneficial to player Hank Greenberg and the Detroit club."

"The culmination was that outright assignment of his contract to the Pittsburgh club of the National league," the statement continued.

"Greenberg, over his entire career, has performed well for Detroit and the good wishes of the club and its officials go with him to his new connection," the statement concluded.

General Manager Billy Evans declared that all seven other American league clubs declined to claim the big slugger at the $10,000 waiver price.

"No American league club was interested in his contract at that figure, making it possible for us to send him to the National league," Evans said.

Pay Check $60,000

While it never has been officially disclosed, it was the accepted belief in Detroit baseball circles that Greenberg's 1946 pay check was approximately $60,000.

Several years ago Jack Zeller, then general manager of the Tigers attempted to sell the tall home run king to the New York Yankees but the Yanks were reluctant to assume his high-salary contract at that time and the deal fell through.

While Evans, since assuming the post of vice-president of the Tigers three weeks ago, is not known to have contacted Greenberg regarding a 1947 contract, he also made reference to the recent Sporting News article when he declared that Hank's shift to Pittsburgh "will give him a chance to perform in new fields that should be a happy solution to Greenberg's problems."

"The departure of Greenberg from the Detroit club marks the passing of another Detroit developed star," Evans said.

Hank, who had been with the Tigers since 1933 with the exception of four years in the army, never has worn another major league uniform.

Comeback Amazing

During his 11 seasons with the Tigers Greenberg led the American league four times in runs batted-in and four times in home runs.

His amazing comeback a year ago to win the major league home run championship with 44 and pace the American league in runs batted-in with 127, probably rates as his best year in baseball in the face of the fact that he was 35 years old and continual leg and back ailments plagued him through his first full season since his return from the army.

Arriving back in baseball at midseason, 1945, after his lengthy military hitch, Greenberg stepped directly into the left field position he held when he left, belted 13 circuit clouts including the one that beat St. Louis and clinched the pennant for Detroit on the last day of the season, and was a batting star in the World Series as the Tigers defeated the Chicago Cubs.

Hank was named the most valuable player in the American league in 1935 as a first baseman, his original position, and earned the honor again in 1940 after shifting to the outfield to make room for Rudy York at first. Detroit won the American league flag in both 1935 and 1940.

Last year Greenberg returned to the infield because the Tigers were over-supplied with capable outer gardeners, but at the close of the season, when the Tigers finished second back of the Boston Red Sox Hank expressed a desire to return to the outfield if he continued in the game.

At that time he declared he had not made up his mind whether he would retire before the 1947 season and he still has not announced his intentions.

REDSKIN SIX OPEN SEASON

Marquette Liberty Loan Hockey Team Plays At Gladstone Today

Gladstone—The Gladstone Redskins will play their opening hockey game this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the playground rink with the Marquette Liberty Loans furnishing the opposition.

On the Redskin squad are Gideon Sloan, Walter Gobert, Frank Stupak, Melvin Kallerson, John Lake, Robert Lake, Francis Lagina, John Lagina, Jack Forvilly, Bryant, Gordon Hago, Walred Lindberg, Melvin Erickson, Robert Pepin and Mel Rothchild.

The players will meet at the rink at 10 o'clock this morning.

Walred Lindberg is the coach of the locals.

Next Sunday the Redskins will play at Escanaba.

HAWKS RESUME BLOODY BATTLE

Escanaba And Newberry Hockey Teams Tangle Here Today

A wild and bloody game is forecast by Manager Bob Grabowski of the Escanaba Hawks for this afternoon's 2:30 meeting with the fighting Newberry hockey team at the Escanaba Indoor Ice Rink.

"Don't get me wrong," Grabowski said. "Art Gardner's going to referee, and he's strictly okay. Only those Newberry guys are like crazy. Off the ice, they come up and smile and talk, and you think they're your brother. Our guys think: 'Well, these are certainly nice guys, so I'll treat them nice, too.'"

"And so what happens? They get on the ice, and they go like crazy. Like they're mad at you. All different. So what can you expect?"

Seemingly, there was generated in the game between the two teams last Sunday at Newberry, a spirit and a rivalry as emotional as though it were generations deep.

The Hawks came limping back to town with a fine assortment of bruises, the big end of a 6-4 score, and a highly approving opinion of the kind of hockey they had played against. And the highest of their plaudits were reserved for the loudly enthusiastic Newberry hockey fans, who had given the Hawks a reception as stimulating as a bucketful of benzene.

"No foul!" Grabowski said. "We played better hockey than we knew we could. The way those people hollered, it gave you a shot in the arm better than a brass band with three majorettes and a flag."

Considering that last Sunday's game was the first of the season for the Newberry aggregation, and that they spent the afternoon heaving and hauling at the lead with the slightly more veteran Hawks, today's game should be close and hard.

The Hawks have been reinforced in depth this week by new recruits, including Charles Orlund, defenseman, and Don Belanger, a veteran of the old Escanaba Hawks.

Advance ticket sales indicate a great local interest and a large crowd. In addition, a heavy contingent of the enthusiastic Newberry rooters are expected.

Escanaba's starting line-up will be: Center, P. Goymerac; wing, J. Weber; wing, G. Petaja; defense, J. Gorenchian; defense, C. Eastman; goalie, G. Joran.

Next Thursday night, the Hawks play Gladstone at Gladstone. Next Sunday afternoon, they take on Gladstone in a return game at the Indoor Rink here in Escanaba.

Bombers Of Cooks Rout Esky Obergers

The Cooks Bombers lowered the boom on Obergers of Escanaba, 69 to 44, at Cooks Friday night. The Bombers turned the game into a rout in the second half after leading only 24-22 at half time.

Sunday the Bombers will entertain Trenary, with the Cooks Indians and Michigan Dimension teams playing a 1:30 prelim.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The Eskymos had a bad night Friday in their game with the Menominee Maroons, a team which, like the Eskymos, is not apt to go far in Upper Peninsula tournament competition this season. Both teams were ragged in their shooting but the Maroons had the better of the argument because they generally got two or three pokes at the bucket while the Eskymos, lacking height, had to settle for only one. The Menominee team hardly compares in class with the Ishpeming quintet to which the Eskymos gave quite a scare just before the holidays.

The six successive defeats sustained by the current Escanaba high school squad do not constitute the worst losing streak in local basketball history. That belongs to the team of the late 1930s.

MINOR CHANGES IN GRID RULES

Fair Catch Signal Revised By Prep Committee

The National Federation football rules committee voted unanimously at its meeting in St. Petersburg, Florida to remove line restrictions on the center, guards and tackles, Coach George R. W. of Escanaba, Michigan delegate to the meeting, has reported, but the change will not affect Michigan teams.

Under the National Federation rules book, center, guards and tackles were required to notify the officials in changes of their positions to the backfield, but the rule was not operative for Michigan teams, where a test was made last fall. Under the new rule, the notification rule will be stricken entirely from the rules book.

The committee also voted to permit the ball to continue in play on the following pass or free-kick infractions: (1) illegal substitutions, (2) player prostrate at the snap or illegal hideout; and, (3), backfield man less than one yard behind the line (except man directly under the center). In the past such infractions were violations during the snap and the ball remained dead.

A primary change adopted by the committee requires a revision in the fair catch signal. Players called for a fair catch will be required to wave their right hand overhead as a definite indication of a fair catch. In past years the signal was right hand and arm upraised but too many players shielded their eyes from the sun while receiving punts, causing confusion with the fair catch signal.

The committee took no action on a proposal to return the goal posts to the goal line, but decided to present it to the nation's coaches in next year's referendum on rules changes.

Argentine Heavy May Box Joe Louis

Des Moines, Jan. 18 (P)—Pinkie George, manager of Abel Cestac, Argentine heavyweight, said today he had received an offer for Cestac to box Joe Louis at Buenos Aires when the world's heavyweight champion appears there Feb. 23 on his six-week South American boxing tour.

George, who said the offer came from Billy McCarney who is booking Louis exhibitions, also said representatives of promoters in South America asked about the availability of Cestac.

"We'll take the highest bid," said Pinkie.

Cestac knocked out Harry Patterson of Miami, Fla., in the second round of their scheduled 10-round fight here last night.

No City League Games On Tuesday

There will be no City league basketball games Tuesday night because of the Tom Swift's-Ishpeming Legion game at the junior high school gymnasium. All four City league games of the week will be played Thursday night at the junior high school.

The schedule follows:

Harris vs. Mike's, 7 o'clock; Gladstone vs. CYO, 8 o'clock; Swift's vs. VFW, 9 o'clock; Oberg's vs. Bark River, 10 o'clock.

The Swift's-VFW game headlines the program, the teams now being tied for the league leadership.

Women's Tourney Continues Today

The women's bowling tournament will continue today and Monday at the Arcade alleys with the following schedule tonight at 7 p. m.: L&L, Clairmonts, Birds Eye, Hot Spots, Bowlerettes and 354's; tonight at 9 p. m.: Ten Pins, Marigolds, Ramblers, Pin Ups, Lamays and Eldakettes; Monday night, 9 p. m.: Baby Ruths, L&L, Anita's, Sherman Hotel, Gust Asp and Birds Eye.

Siam has an area of 200,000 square miles, four times that of New York State.

TROJANS TAKE 'STIQUE, 47-34

Emeralds Bow Under St. Joseph's In A Wide-open Game

Ten ball hawks swooped in the Bonifas gym last night when St. Joseph's of Escanaba out-slashed the fighting, diving Manistique Emeralds, 47-34, in what was, for the first three quarters, as nice an exhibition of fast-breaking basketball as one could wish to see.

In the fourth quarter, however, the hawks tired, and their swoops lacked in the earlier precision, though not in aggressiveness. The play washed back and forth from end of the court to the other with the pendulum-like swing of a tennis match.

Lewis was the big man for St. Joseph's, racking up 16 points. St. John paced Manistique with 10 points.

The two teams, evenly matched in speed and ball-handling and drive, were neck and neck through most of the game. The half ended with a Trojan lead of 1 point. The third quarter was the turning point, with both teams playing slam-bang basketball, and St. Joe piling up the score entirely on their ability to connect with the hoop. Manistique had control of the ball an equal share of the time, but seemed unable to make their shots count.

The Manistique reserves took the preliminary game by a score of 44-16 over the St. Joseph reserves.

Escanaba Skaters Winners At Alpena

Alpena, Mich., Jan. 18 (P)—Detroit entries took most of the laurels on the opening day of the Michigan Speed Skating championships today before more than 1,000 spectators at the Alpena Winter Sports carnival.

Entries from Alpena, Saginaw and Escanaba gave the Detroiters the closest run for their money and officials predicted some record breaking performances would be turned in Sunday in the final events.

Closeness of the competition was indicated by the fact that ties for first place in total point standings existed in three of the seven divisions.

Finals on Sunday are:

Senior women's 440; senior men's 440; classes A and B intermediate to boys and girls finals; senior men's mile final A and B; senior women's final mile event; senior men's A three-mile final; senior men's B two-mile final.

The summaries of Saturday's events included:

Senior Men: 220—Won by Art Brown, Detroit; second, John Hebert, Escanaba; third, Howie Allison, Detroit. Time: 19.9.

Half-mile—Won by Terry Browne, Detroit; second, Mario Traflet, Detroit; third, Jim Thompson, Detroit. Time 1.28.

Two Mile—Won by Henry Gessure, Detroit; second, George Omelchuk, Detroit; third, Jim Thompson, Detroit. Time 6.26.9.

Points—Terry Browne, Detroit, 30; Henry Gessure, Detroit, 30; Art Brown, Detroit,

POLIO FUND IS HELP TO MANY

Crippled Children Of Delta County Aided By Contributions

The assistance being given crippled and afflicted children of Delta county in a program financed in part by contributions to the March of Dimes, now under way in the county, was outlined yesterday by John Lemmer, Escanaba superintendent of schools. The public schools in Escanaba maintain special orthopedic rooms where the crippled and afflicted child can receive treatment and an education.

During the school year 1945-46, Supt. Lemmer said, money raised for crippled children in Delta county was spent in the following ways:

$430 for hot lunches, $170 for room and board of those children of Delta county who must live in Escanaba, $440 for transportation of crippled children to hospitals, and for medical aid; $750 for the purchase of a hydrotherapy tank; $450 for St. Luke's hospital at Marquette for the use of special facilities; $190 for the Bay Cliff Health Camp for children in Marquette county; and $500 for extra expenses in connection with physical therapy equipment in Escanaba. The total for the year was $2,930.

There are now nine children in the orthopedic room and in the classroom for crippled children. In addition 33 youngsters are receiving physical therapy treatments each week. The youngest child is 2½ years old. Only five of the children now wear braces, and four have discarded them as their condition improved. One of the children was unable to walk two years ago, but during the recent Christmas holidays she was able to visit the shops for the first time—able to walk—and it was for her "the thrill of her young lifetime," Supt. Lemmer said.

GOES TO GERMANY — Dr. James K. Pollock, above, University of Michigan political science professor, said Saturday he would leave Jan. 21 for Washington at the War Department's request to begin anew his duties as civilian advisor in the American occupation zone of Germany.

Dr. Pollock, who was civilian advisor to Lieut. General Lucius D. Clay, American occupation commander, recently was asked by the War Department to return to Germany to work with the newly elected government.

He said he would be in Germany 60 days. Dr. Pollock was awarded the Medal of Merit for "exceptionally meritorious conduct" under General Clay's command from Oct. 17-1945 to Aug. 6-1946.

Obituary

MILTON L. SWANSON

Funeral services for Milton L. Swanson were held Saturday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock at the Anderson funeral home, Rev. Otto Steen of the First Methodist church conducting the rites.

Mrs. A. Olson sang "Take My Hand, Precious Lord," and "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me." Mrs. John Anderson was her accompanist.

Burial was in Lakeview cemetery. Pallbearers were Howard Dufour, Gordon Flath, Peter Silbernagel, Wallace and Louis Starline and Roderick Kttnr.

Those from out-of-town at the rites were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swanson and Miss Betty Jane Owens, of Milwaukee; Mrs. Andrew Swanson of Iron Mountain and Edward Doberstein and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmit, of Marinette.

MRS. MARY SCHOEN

Funeral rites for Mrs. Mary Schoen, of Wilson, which were largely attended, were held Saturday afternoon, Rev. William Lutz officiating, at 1:30 o'clock at the Anderson funeral home and at 1:45 o'clock at Salem Lutheran church.

The music of the service included two duets, "Abide With Me" and "Asleep in Jesus," sung by Mary Ann Ottensman and Lois Mae Lemke. Mrs. Henry Ottensman, Jr., was organist.

Burial was in Gardens of Rest cemetery. The pallbearers were Jesse Bellefeul, Roy Bagley, William Kielkamp, George Hansen,

Library Adventure

By Arnold Mulder

The Pulitzer prize winning history, "The Age of Jackson," by Arthur M. Schlesinger, in addition to reviving the fame of Andrew Jackson, is having the effect of rehabilitating the political personality of Martin Van Buren. This fact should be interesting to people of Dutch descent, for Martin Van Buren is the only man who ever occupied the White House who was of Dutch descent on both sides of the family.

Such a statement sounds odd to people who have been accustomed to thinking of Theodore and Franklin D. Roosevelt as "Hollanders." In simple fact the Roosevelts were not Hollanders any more than several other presidents. In his book, "A Nation of Nations," Louis Adamie traces Dutch blood in James Madison, Zachary Taylor, William Howard Taft, Ulysses S. Grant, and Harry S. Truman and in the Confederate president Jefferson Davis, as well as in the Roosevelts, and those others had about as much Dutch blood as the Roosevelts.

The Roosevelts were descended from a Dutch immigrant who landed here in 1650, but on the mother's side the late Franklin Roosevelt was descended from a Swede, Martin Hoffman, who came to America eight years later. So he is at least as much Swedish as Dutch.

Martin Van Buren, however, was Dutch on both sides of the family, and there had been so little mixture of racial strains in his ancestral background that he can almost be counted as of unmixed Dutch blood. Yet most Hollanders are hardly conscious of Martin Van Buren. He is hardly more than a name to them.

Dr. Schlesinger does not call attention to Van Buren's Dutch blood; he is quite simply interested in Van Buren the politician. But the rehabilitation he gives him is likely to drag Van Buren out of the political limbo in which he has lived for a century, in the consciousness of the American public, not merely in that of Hollanders.

For all practical purposes Martin Van Buren has been forgotten for a century. He was quite a person in his own day, one of the wildest politicians that this nation has produced. Not only was he active in the politics of New York state, he was the political force behind the Jackson administration. His was a national reputation in every sense, but he was so dwarfed by the epic events and personalities of the Civil War period that followed almost immediately that for a century he has been a mere nonentity in American history.

There was another reason for Van Buren's eclipse. He began his political life as a champion of the people, the sparkplug of Jacksonian radicalism. He had more to do than perhaps even Jackson in changing the word "democracy" from one of reproach to one of honor. He was particularly good in gathering votes from what in those days was called the class of the "horny-handed men of toil."

But later he had something of a change of heart. During the last couple decades of his life, particularly after he had left the presidency, he turned on the men of toil in his own state, in the Hudson valley, who were being fleeced by the owners of the rich estates that dotted the valley. Among the Hudson valley Hollanders he became one of the most hated men in the nation.

But the main reason for his eclipse was that all the presidents from Jackson to Lincoln were relatively forgotten because they were dwarfed by the Civil War.

Teachers' Colleges To Double Tuition

Lansing (P)—Michigan's four teacher-training colleges were ordered to double their tuition today by the State Board of Education in a move to bring those institutions' charges more in line with other colleges.

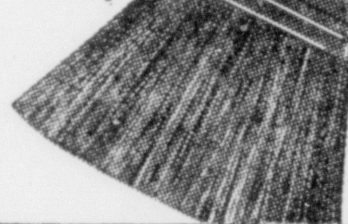

The board increased resident tuition from $15 to $30 per semester and out-state tuition from $30 to $60 effective next September.

The board agreed to make no change in the issuance of special teachers' certificates in 1947-48, permitting school districts to continue to hire teachers with substandard qualifications under certain conditions because of a teacher shortage.

The present American glider record is a distance of 314 miles.
